THE STRUGGLE IN PARIS.

Progress of the Contest in the City—Desperate Resistance and a Prisoner—Protection of Foreign Powers Denied the Insurgents.

LONDON, May 24.—The Daily News' special dispatch from Versailles says the terminus of the Strasbourg Railway was carried yesterday. M. THIERS is indefatigable in the direction of operations looking to the supply of Paris with provisions. The Telegraph's special dispatch says the Foreign Powers have ordered their representatives in Paris not to protest the insurgents. It is said that the American Minister, Mr. WASHBURNE, did not act in concert with the other diplomats. BILLIORAY, the Communist Minister of War, was killed in yesterday's battle.

OUTSIDE OF PARIS, May 24—Morning.—The barricades in the Place Vendome and Place de la Concorde have not yet been carried, and the barricades at Belleville still hold out against the Government troops. The insurgents, however, are discouraged by the success of the Versaillists. The losses of the latter, yesterday, were heavy. Strong hopes are entertained that the finishing blow will be given to the Communists today.

The Versaillists have advanced their left wing to Belleville, their centre to the Palace of the Louvre and Halle Centrale, and their right to the Observatory. The fumes and smoke of petroleum pervade the city.

VERSAILLES, May 24—Morning.—Gen. DOMBROWSKI was wounded, and has been captured and imprisoned at St. Denis. The Government troops, yesterday, dislodged the Federals from the Faubourg Germain, and elsewhere, and are, today, continuing their victorious march. It is thought the Federals will attempt to escape toward Belleville and Pantin. Crowds of repulsive-looking men, destitute of uniforms and in rags, have been taken prisoners.

The Attack on Mr. Washburne's Residence—Action of the Communal Authorities.

LONDON, May 24.—Berlin journals of the 21st inst. state that Gen. FABRICE recently demanded of the Paris Commune the surrender of the National Guards implicated in the attack upon the hotel of Mr. WASHBURNE, the American Minister. M. GROUSSET replied that the Commune had ordered that the Embassy be held sacred, and that when they heard that the establishment had been attacked, they ordered a Court-martial of the offenders. The culprits fled in dismay, and could not be found. The Commune could therefore only express its sorrow and indignation at the occurrence of a deed which they were unable to prevent.

Vandalism of the Insurgents—The Tuileries Burned Down—Other Palaces Fired—The Hotel De Ville Blown Up.

VERSAILLES, May 24.—Morning.—The Louvre and Tuileries are burning. They are said to have been ignited by the federals with petroleum.

LONDON, May 25—5 A. M.—The latest dispatches from Paris say:

The Luxembourg has been partially blown up. The Palais Royal is still burning. Only one-third of the Louvre has been saved.

Fighting continues at the Hotel de Ville, and at the terminus of the Northern Railroad.

Marshal MCMAHON, with his staff, has removed to the Place Vendome.

A heavy rain is falling.

OUTSIDE OF PARIS, May 24—1 P. M.—A terrible explosion has just occurred in the centre of Paris, and it is considered probable that the Hotel de Ville has been blown up by the insurgents.

The Fires Still Burning—Another Bombardment—Terrible Scenes.

OUTSIDE PARIS, Wednesday Night, May 24.—Large fires are still raging within the city. The Versaillists are furiously bombarding those quarters where the insurgents keep up resistance. The dead remain unburied, and the wounded lie unheeded in the streets.

VERSAILLES, May 24.—In the Assembly, this afternoon, M. THIERS announced that the Hotel de Ville was in flames. He expressed his horror at these acts of vandalism, and declared that it was the determination of the Government to punish the perpetrators without mercy.

THE WORK OF DEVASTATION.

Destruction and Misery at the Edifices Destroyed by the Parisian Vandals.

The name of Tuileries is derived from the fact the tiles (tuiles) used in Paris were formerly manufactured on its site. The ground was purchased in 1564 by CATHERINE DE MEDICIS, and the present palace commenced. PHILIBERT DELORME was the architect. It was much improved under LOUIS XIII and XIV. In 1572, CATHERINE DE MEDICIS gave a fête a few days before the massacre of St. Bartholomew, during which were allegorical representations in which all the nobility, Catholics and Protestants, were actors. During the performance, the King of Navarre and other Huguenots were presented by CHARLES IX. and his brothers from entering Paradise, and were pushed into hell. This was very significant, for four days after the massacre took place, the whole having been arranged before the fête. LOUIS XIV. resided at the Tuileries before the completion of the Palace of Versailles. Afterward it was occupied until his return by the families of persons attached to his Court. In June, 1792, the mob entered the palace, and in August of the same year the Swiss Guard were murdered in it. It was the official residence of the First Consul and also of the Imperial Court of NAPOLEON. After the Revolution of 1830 the Royal family resided there. In 1848 the mob entered again and drove out the King. It was the residence of LOUIS PHILIPPE until the Revolution of 1848, when a party of rioters, in company with some lewd women, occupied a apartments (or cuts) there. They turned the King's and Queen's bedrooms into dining-rooms, and celebrated their orgies night and day in the most magnificent apartments of the palace. In 1852 the Tuileries was occupied as a gallery for the exhibition of paintings, and on the re-establishment of the Empire it became the residence of the Imperial Court. The façade fronting the garden of the Tuileries is about 1,600 feet in length, running from the Rue Rivoli to the Seine. The style of architecture is styled. The first or lower floor columns are Doric; the second Corinthian, and the third Composite. At the extremity of the façade are two lofty pavilions with remarkable forty roofs and chimneys. The one on the Rue de Rivoli is called Pavillon Marsan, and the one toward the Seine Pavillon de Flore. NAPOLEON I. connected the two by means of another the Tuileries with that of the Louvre, which stood parallel with it at about a quarter of a mile distant, but political events transpired which prevented his carrying out his designs. It was left for his nephew to finish this great undertaking. During the late Imperial reign the ground floor of the southern wing of the palace was occupied by the Empress. These apartments were formerly occupied by LOUIS PHILIPPE and his immediate family. The entrance to the state apartments is up the Escalier de Chapelle. The antique ceiling of this apartment formerly decorated the sleeping apartment of Les Reines Blanche, and was brought from Vincennes. To the left of this is the theatre, used as a supper-room on ball nights; it is capable of accommodating 600 persons. Opposite this on the ground floor is the State Chapel. The Salle de Le Portique is used as a ball-room. Over the mantel piece is a fine picture, by HEIM, of NAPOLEON III. by MULLER. In the hall is a statue of Peace, presented to NAPOLEON I. by the City of Paris after the treaty of Amiens. Next is the Salle des Marechaux, the finest of the suite. This has also been used as a ball-room by State occasions. The walls are pearl and white, the furniture green damask and gold. The names of the great battles of NAPOLEON I. are inscribed over the gallery, and the busts of all his distinguished Generals, and portraits of many of them, adorn the walls. The next room is the Salle Blanche, or council-room; the Salon d'Apollon, and then the Salle du Trone. The hangings are of dark red velvet, embroidered with gold; the carpets, of GOBELIN'S manufacture, cost nearly $100,000. Next is the Salon Louis XIV., which contains a number of valuable historical portraits. Then comes the Galerie de diner, or state dining-room, and behind these are the apartments formerly occupied by the Emperor.

The Old Louvre, which was recently connected with the Tuileries by the erection of the New Louvre, has been regarded as unequalled, architecturally, by any other building in the city, the eastern front especially being noteworthy for its classic design and execution. Its famous colonnade, known as the Colonnade du Louvre, was erected during the time of LOUIS XIV., and was regarded as one of the master-pieces of that age. It consists of twenty-eight double Corinthian columns, the façade being 525 feet in length. A magnificent effect is produced by the grand gateway in the centre. The gates were made by order of the first NAPOLEON, and are of bronze.

On the site of the LOUVRE stood centuries ago the hunting-seat of DAGOBERT. During the reign of PHILIP AUGUSTUS the site was occupied by a castle which defended the Seine. In the centre of this was the famous Tower of the Louvre, long used as a place of confinement for noted prisoners of State. The present building, commenced by FRANCIS, remained unfinished until 1806, when the Great NAPOLEON took the work in hand and completed it. The design of the building is a perfect square, each side being over 600 feet in dimension. The order of each elevation of the four façades is principally Corinthian or composite. The interior court is one of the most beautifully decorated in Europe. Many persons of great historical celebrity have inhabited the palace, including Henry III., Henry IV., Louis XIII., Louis XIV., Charles II., and Henrietta, the widow of Charles I., or England. The new Louvre was partially occupied under the Second Empire, by the offices of the Ministers of State and of the Interior. It contained also the barracks of the Cent Gardes, the apartments of the palace domestics, the Imperial stables, and the library of the Louvre, formerly the private library of LOUIS PHILIPPE, which comprises about 30,000 volumes. The entire palace is of vast extent, covering altogether over sixty acres of ground.

PALACE OF THE LEGION OF HONOR.

This edifice was built in 1786 by the architect ROUSSEAU, for the Prince of SALM, and was purchased by the Government in 1830. The entrance was in the form of a triumphal arch of the Ionic order, flanked by a colonnade in the same style. The front contained six Corinthian columns, forming a portico, with the inscription: Honneur et Patrie. The principal apartment was a rotunda, forty feet in diameter, giving a view of the river. It was decorated by BOCQUET in the time of LOUIS XVI.

THE HOTEL DE VILLE.

This structure was situated on the Place de l'Hotel de Ville, formerly the Place de la Greve. It was designed for the accommodation of the Municipality of Paris, and cost $3,000,000. It was began in 1862, and completed in 1606. It was the theatre of many historical events of great interest, and is intimately associated with the political history of the city and of France. From a window of the Hotel de Ville CHARLES IX. presented LOUIS PHILIPPE to the people, and in one of its rooms LOUIS XVI. addressed the populace, crowned with the cap of liberty; in another ROBESPIERRE held his council, and attempted suicide in still another. On the steps leading to one of its courts, M. DE LAMARTINE defended to an infuriated mob that so long as he lived the red flag should not be the flag of France. In the belfry was the town clock, which was illuminated at night. The rooms of this edifice were magnificent in their proportions, and among them were the Salle du Trone and the Galleria des Fêtes. In the latter the balls in honor of the visits of Queen VICTORIA, Prince ALBERT and VICTOR EMMANUEL, in 1855, were given, and in honor of the Grand Duke CONSTANTINE in 1867. Seven thousand persons have been present at one of these balls. There were, besides, six hundred rooms for clerks and the various officials.

GENERAL EUROPEAN NEWS.

The London Times on the Treaty—Position of London—Postal Treaty Between Germany and the United States.

LONDON, May 24.—The Times of today expresses the opinion that the settlement of the question of the Alabama claims is honorable to England, and that the object of both England and America is realized. Though the treaty represents no perfect compromise, it is still acceptable for the sake of peace, and both countries have already practically ratified the result of the labors of the Commission. The official result of the census of London, just published, shows a total population of slightly rising three and a quarter millions. Whit-Monday will be observed as a holiday in all the English markets.

BERLIN, May 24.—The Reichstag has approved a supplementary clause to the Postal Treaty between America and Germany, under which letters will henceforward be forwarded to and from America at the rate of two and a half groschen (about five cents) per half ounce.

BUCHAREST, May 24.—Throughout the elections a strong reactionary feeling was shown in favor of Prince CHARLES. The latest returns strengthen the Ministerial majority in the Chamber.

LISBON, May 24.—The United States flagship Franklin has sailed with the rest of the squadron for Gravesend.

THE "DERBY."

Baron Rothschild's Favorite Wins the Stakes—The Favorite Nowhere.

LONDON, May 24.—The great event of the year in the sporting line came off today. The weather was delightful, and at an early hour the city was almost emptied of its population, thousands upon thousands betaking themselves by all means of conveyance to Epsom Downs. The crowd on the course was immense, far exceeding that of last year. On the grand stand were many of the most eminent men in the Kingdom. The race was well managed. The horses, seventeen in number, started in a bunch. As it became apparent the Zephyr colt would win the race, the interest centred in the contest for the second place. This created intense excitement, and when Albert Victor and King of the Forest came in neck and neck, the cheering was tremendous, surpassing that with which the winner was received.

The following is the summary:

Renewal of the Derby Stakes of 50 sovereigns each, half forfeit, for colts, 120 pounds, and fillies, 117 pounds, three years old, one mile and a half, the owner of the second horse to receive 200 sovereigns and the third 100 sovereigns out of the stakes; 900 subscribers.

Baron Rothschild's ch. c. Favonius, by Parmesan, out of Zephyr.....1

Mr. W. S. Cartwright's ch. c. Albert Victor, by Marsyas, out of Princess of Wales.....2

Mr. Merry's b. c. King of the Forest, by Scottish Chief, out of Lioness.....3

The two latter made a dead heat. The others are not placed. WELLS was the jockey of ROTHSCHILD'S colt; MORRIS, of Albert Victor, and SNOWDEN, of the King of the Forest. The betting just previous to the start was 9 to 1 against the winner, 4 to 1 against Albert Victor, 12 to 1 against King of the Forest.

AMERICAN TURF NEWS.

The Point Breeze Races—First Day.

PHILADELPHIA, May 24.—Today was the first day of the Spring meeting of the Point Breeze Park Association. The attendance was fair, the weather delightful and the track good.

The first race was for horses that have never started for purse, plate or stake, purse $1,000; $600 to first, $300 to second, $100 to third horse. There were five entries, and all started. Fleetwood was the favorite and Bridget second.

FIRST HEAT.—There was a fair start. Fleetwood led at half-mile pole fully five lengths, in 1:18, and won the heat in 2:37¼.

SECOND HEAT.—Fleetwood led at the start, and maintained it, passing the first quarter pole in 38½, and won both heats easily in 2:36¾.

THIRD HEAT.—Bridget led, but was soon passed by Fleetwood, who passed the half-mile pole in 1:15¾, three lengths ahead, and won the heat in 2:35½, coming in five lengths ahead.

THE WEST INDIES.

Dissolution of the Haytian Ministry—A Financial Crisis Expected—Miscellaneous News.

KINGSTON, Jamaica, May 24.—The new Ministry of Hayti has been dissolved in consequence of dissensions in the Cabinet. The appointment of JAMBOUR as Minister of Finance, and of MADION as Minister of Justice were disapproved by Congress. A financial crisis is imminent, and a loan to the Government is improbable. A proclamation has been issued compelling the enlistment of all Haytians between the ages of eighteen and sixty. Dates from St. Kitts to the 16th announce that the telegraph cable expedition will sail for Antigua the coming week. Martinique dispatches of the 16th announce that the Governor has gone to Havre, and that the City of St. Pierre has been declared to be in a state of siege. Advices from Trinidad to the 6th have been received. A great Catholic revival was in progress. The image of the Virgin at Sapana, according to statements, had given evidence of supernatural power, and was performing miracles. Hundreds of people were making pilgrimages to the image. There is news from Venezuela to the 10th. Complications had taken place with the British authorities relative to the boundaries of British Guiana, and the rights to the gold mines on the frontier.

PANAMA.

The Insurrection—Movements of the Monitor—All Efforts to Restore Peace Fail.

ASPINWALL, May 18, via KINGSTON, Jam.—The United States steamer Resaca is expected at Panama. The steamer Montijo seized a quantity of coal belonging to the Pacific Navigation Company, and had landed 300 men within five miles of Panama. The foreign Consuls acting as Commissioners had made an effort, which proved unsuccessful, to arrange a peace. HERRERA, the Chief of the insurgents, had an interview with the premier of CORREOSO, on board the Montijo, but they could come to no agreement. The Montijo subsequently left for an unknown destination. There is great excitement in Panama, and cannon are now placed in the streets. An accident on the railroad had caused an interruption to traffic from the 16th to 18th.

The Yale-Harvard Boat Race.

NEW-HAVEN, Conn., May 24.—At a fully-attended meeting of the Yale Boat Club this afternoon, the letter received from the Harvard Boat Club, in response to Yale's challenge of Dec. 10, 1870, for a six-oared, three miles, straight-away race, on any course in America which the challenged party might select, was read by the President. This letter was to the effect that while Harvard would allow Yale to enter the Union College Regatta, to be rowed on the Connecticut River, near Springfield, Mass., July 14, under the auspices, over a three-mile straight course, it would not allow it to engage in a separate University race at any other place than Lake Quinsigamond, Worcester, over a doubled mile and a half course about a single turning-stake. After an exciting debate it was voted by a large majority that the Harvard oarsmen be notified that their letter is construed as a non-acceptance of the challenge of Dec. 10, and that the University crew of Yale having in consequence disbanded, will not recognise any future acceptance of that challenge. Thus the question of Yale taking part in any college races this Summer is settled by the refusal of Harvard to allow a straight University race and by its own refusal to take part in a miscellaneous college regatta under its rival's auspices.

WASHINGTON.

The Treaty Ratified—Mr. Colfax's Condition—He is Visited by the President—Miscellaneous News.

WASHINGTON, May 24.—The Senate closed a session of thirteen hours today by ratifying the Treaty of Washington, by a vote of 50 to 12. It is understood, and without amendment. This is the result that has been expected. The injunction of secrecy was not removed from the record of the vote, and it cannot be stated exactly to-night who votes against ratification. It is probably, however, that the following list is correct, or nearly so. Casserly, Corbett, Cooper, Davis or Kentucky, Hamilton of Texas, Kelley, Saulsbury, Sprague, Stevenson, Stockton, Tipton, and Vickers. The Senate went into Executive Session immediately after meeting at 10 o'clock this morning. Mr. CONKLING is understood to have made a speech against ratification, after which the debate was of an informal running character for the most part, and upon propositions to amend which were numerous. The debate was participated in by Messrs. Sumner, Corbett, Casserly, Kelly, Thurman, Morton, Cameron and others. Mr. SUMNER and Mr. CASSERLY both made strenuous endeavors to have the three rules for neutrals amended, and a motion of Mr. SUMNER'S to amend the second rule, so as to increase the restrictions on neutrals, came within three votes of being adopted. Mr. CASSERLY'S objection to these rules was much stronger than to the San Juan adjustment. About 5 o'clock it was expected that the final vote would be reached at an early hour, and a few Senators sent out to purchase railroad tickets, in the expectation that the Senate would adjourn in time for them to go away on the 6 o'clock train, but from hour to hour, as new propositions to amend were made, repeated debate sprung up, and it was 11 o'clock before the direct vote on ratification was taken, which resulted as already stated. It is understood that the English Commissioners and Minister SCHENCK on the Cuba, will be able to receive information of the approval of their labor at Halifax. There is a general anxiety among Senators to get away; and final adjournment is likely to occur to-morrow.

THE TREATY PUBLICATION.

Mr. WHITELAW REID, of the Tribune, was before the Investigating Committee to-night, special permission having been granted for the members of the Committee to leave the Senate to be present at the investigation. The Committee does not appear to have gained much information, as Mr. REID had evidently not given much attention himself to learning where the copy of the treaty came from, or how much it cost. The amount of money paid for the copy was anxiously sought for in vain. Mr. REID said that in the accounts of the Washington office for the week in which the treaty was published no item of expense for the treaty was specified, and he was unable to say whether anything was paid for it, or how much. He was asked, among other things, of the authorship of certain articles in the Tribune, and after stating his doubt of the right of the Committee to put the question, he waived his objections to them, and answered, because he did not deem the point in this instance of material importance. He testified to having given instructions, in a general way, for the procuring of the treaty, but had given none after it was laid before the Senate.

MR. COLFAX'S CONDITION.

Vice-President COLFAX is still in a very critical condition, though prospect of his ultimate recovery is regarded as hopeful, if not entirely assured. It is known today that the fears of yesterday, created by an apparent concealment of the real nature of his attack, were not much exaggerated, and that he was in greater danger than was given out.

President GRANT, accompanied by Secretary BOUTWELL, called at the room of Vice-President COLFAX to inquire as to his health. Mr. COLFAX was too weak to hold any conversation, and they therefore remained only a few minutes. His physician said in reply to an inquiry to-night that his patient had been in a very dangerous condition, but the prospect now was that he would recover, as the symptoms were favorable.

COLLECTOR MURPHY, OF NEW-YORK.

It is denied in official circles that Collector MURPHY is to be removed, and it is further said Mr. MURPHY has the confidence of the President and Secretary BOUTWELL.

THE PRUSSIAN CLOSED MAIL.

The attention of the Post-office Department has been called to the circumstances that letters for Germany are frequently received at the Post-office in New-York, which bear upon them special directions to forward per the Prussian closed mail, and prepaid at the closed mail rate of postage, and yet the name of a particular steamer of the Bremen line, which takes direct mail only to Germany, is also indorsed upon the covers. In dispatching letters which bear such conflicting directions by the particular route of mail communication indicated by the indorsement on the covers, and the amount of postage prepaid by the sender, it is important to correspondents to remember that the steamers of the North German Lloyd Bremen line do not at present convey any closed mails for the Continent to be landed in Great Britain.

FORTY-SECOND CONGRESS.

Extra Session.

SENATE.....WASHINGTON, Wednesday, May 24.

The Senate met at 10 o'clock. Only eleven or twelve members were present. After preliminary business, Mr. CAMERON moved that the Senate proceed to the consideration of Executive business.

Mr. WILSON, of Massachusetts, gave notice that immediately after the action on the treaty he would move to take up his resolution to discharge Messrs. WHITE and RAMSDALE from custody.

The presiding officer, Mr. ANTHONY, presented the memorial of Flanagan, Bradley, Clarke & Co., John J. Flanagan, Henry Woodruff, for himself, and as trustee for the undersigned; Courtland Palmer, and John M. Donaldson, trustees of the Poultney National Bank, by Henry Woodruff, attorney, stating that they have just claims to the amount of over $200,000 against the Government of Venezuela, for losses occasioned by its failure to perform its obligations and duties under certain grants relating to the construction of the railroad of the east, from Caracasto to Palaro, and its wrongful and arbitrary acts in seizing by military force the materials, tools, and equipments connected with the construction of the road, &c. They therefore, ask the Senate to give some one of its committees power to send for persons and papers, and make examination into the matters connected with the proceedings and delinquencies of the Mixed Commission, and make a report thereon, and in the meantime that such proper notice may be taken as may cause the said money to remain undistributed to the holders of said certificates payable to bearer, until such time as the Committee may make report thereupon, to the end that corruption may be deprived of its reward, and justice may be done.

The memorial was referred to the Committee on Foreign Relations.

The Senate then went into Executive Session on the Treaty.

EXECUTIVE SESSION.

The Senate went into Executive Session at a few minutes past 10 o'clock this morning on the Treaty of Washington. Among those who made speeches were Senators CORBETT, VICKERS, MORRILL, of Vermont, THURMAN, MORTON and KELLEY. All amendments were voted down by large majorities. The treaty was at ten minutes to 11 o'clock ratified by a vote of 50 to 12. The injunction of secrecy has not yet been removed from the vote in detail. The Senate adjourned till to-morrow at 11 o'clock.

The Good Templars—Election of Officers.

BALTIMORE, May 24.—The Grand Lodge of Good Templars of North America, in session here today, elected the following officers for the ensuing year: R. W. G. Templar, Rev. J. Russell, of Michigan; R. W. G. Counsellor, J. J. Hickman, of Kentucky; R. W. G. Vice-Templar, Sister Anna Raymond, of New-York; R. W. G. Secretary, Julius A. Spencer, of Cleveland, Ohio; and R. W. G. Treasurer, John Campbell, of St. Louis, Mo.

Barometer corrected for elevation and temperature.

Synopsis and Prognostications.

WASHINGTON, May 25—1 A. M.—The barometer has fallen somewhat on the Pacific coast, with continued brisk north-west winds and fair weather. It has risen at the Rocky Mountain stations and on the Atlantic Coast, where it is now slightly with clear weather and light winds. The cloudy and threatening weather of Tuesday night has continued in the north-west with diminishing winds. Very few midnight reports have as yet been received.

PROBABILITIES.

No disturbance is indicated as probable for Wednesday on the Atlantic or Gulf coasts. On the Lakes, beginning with Thursday, fresh south and west winds are probable for the lakes.

City Meteorological Report.

The following observations show the temperature, &c., for the past twenty-four hours at the Central Park Mineral Springs:

The Trial of the Gambleton Murderer.

CHICAGO, May 24.—The examination of ZIEGENMEYER, the alleged murderer of GUMBLETON, commenced today. The prisoner is charged with murder in the first degree and with forging GUMBLETON'S name to two drafts. He pleaded not guilty on the first charge, and guilty on the other. He appeared without counsel, and was remanded to jail to prepare for trial.

The Pennsylvania Democratic State Convention.

HARRISBURG, Penn., May 24.—The Democratic State Convention met at 10 o'clock today, and after the appointment of a committee adjourned till 2 P. M., when the following nominations were made: Auditor-General, Gen. WM. MCCANDLESS, of Philadelphia; Surveyor-General, Capt. J. M. COOPER, of Lawrence County. Wm. A. WALLACE was elected Chairman of the State Central Committee.

Base-Ball.

The game at Boston, between the Olympics, of Washington, and the Boston nine, excited great interest, yesterday, and was witnessed by about 5,000 people. The result was a tie, the Bostons being "whitewashed" in every inning except the third. The fielding on both sides was remarkably good. These clubs will play in Brooklyn on Saturday next. The following is the score:

| | 1st. | 2d. | 3d. | 4th. | 5th. | 6th. | 7th. | 8th. | 9th. | |

The flouring-mill of WM. HOMER, one mile east of Newark, Ohio, was burned on Wednesday. Loss, $15,000; insured.

ILLINOIS.

The Chicago Anniversaries—The Progress of Religious Work—The Historical Society—Miscellaneous.

From Our Own Correspondent.

CHICAGO, Saturday, May 20, 1871.

This is anniversary week in Chicago. There has been a great ingathering of religious forces, and the city is now full of "representative men" from all parts of the Union. The Presbyterian General Assembly is here about six hundred strong. The Presbyteries are nearly or quite all represented, the delegation being fuller, I am told, than it has been for years. As this is a legislative body, much of man being without a design to effect death, in the heat of passion, but in a cruel and unusual manner, is in no case murder or any crime greater than manslaughter in the second degree.

I charge the fourteenth—Whatever the intention of FOSTER in assaulting Mr. PUTNAM may have been, it was not a premeditated design to take his life. It matters not how long the intention may have been entertained, it does not constitute murder in the first degree.

In respect to the requests presented by Judge STUART on behalf of the prisoner, I decline to charge the first. I charge the second—On this indictment the jury can convict of murder in the second degree, or of some one of the degrees of manslaughter.

I decline to charge the third.

I charge the fourth—Before the jury can convict the prisoner of murder in the first degree they must find from the evidence that the prisoner had a specific premeditated design to effect the death of the deceased or of some human being; that they must be able to say beyond a reasonable doubt that such was his specific design.

I charge the fifth—If the jury find that the prisoner, when he struck the deceased, intended to inflict serious bodily harm upon the deceased only, the death resulting from such an assault does not amount, in law, to murder in the first degree.

I charge the sixth—If the jury have a reasonable doubt derived from all the evidence as to what intent the prisoner had in assaulting the deceased, they are bound to give the prisoner the benefit of that doubt and find the lesser intent.

As to the seventh and eighth, while not entirely subscribing to them as law, I am inclined to adopt them for the purposes of the case, and accordingly I charge them:

Seventh—There is no presumption of law arising from the fact of the killing, that the prisoner assaulted the deceased with a premeditated design to effect his death.

Eighth—The only malice which the law presumes from the act of killing is such malice as is requisite to constitute, with the killing, murder in the second degree, and these cases of murder in the first degree which are specified in the second and third subdivisions of the sections defining murder in the first degree, and in that case the jury is to determine from the original provisions in the said second and third subdivisions.

I charge the ninth—To make out in this instance a case of murder in the first degree; one kind of malice is essential, viz., a premeditated design to effect death. No other species or quality of malice is sufficient, and this malice must be proved affirmatively or have existed, to the satisfaction of the jury, beyond a reasonable doubt, from any other fact in the case.

I charge the tenth—The words premeditated design are to be understood as they are used in common parlance.

Also, the eleventh—A premeditated design to effect death cannot be said of an intent to kill, which is formed at the instant of striking the blow, or where the act follows the formation of the design instantly, and should the jury find such to be the fact in the case, they cannot convict of murder in the first degree.

I decline to charge the twelfth, except so far as it is embraced in my general charge.

I charge the thirteenth—The jury find that the prisoner's actual intent was to commit an assault and battery upon the deceased, the resulting death is not more than manslaughter in the first degree.

I charge the fourteenth—Good character of the prisoner is an element which, if proved, the jury must take into consideration in making up their minds as to the guilt of the prisoner. Good character of itself may sometimes generate a doubt, where without evidence of good character, no doubt would arise in the case from the other evidence.

Also the fifteenth.—The fact that the prisoner came forward voluntarily, and gave his name as that of the man who had struck the blow, and made the assault, is one proper for the jury to consider as bearing upon the question whether he had any intention to make a fatal assault.

Also the sixteenth—Where the act of killing is admitted, and the intent with which the fatal blow is given is in doubt, proof of good character is material to be taken into consideration by the jury affecting the question of intent.

Having disposed of the requests to charge, I shall not detain you very long, gentlemen, in prosecuting the case to you, for, as I have often remarked on similar occasions, I shall not comment on the evidence, because if I did so I should probably convey to you my judgment of the case, which I have neither the right nor wish to do, because the verdict you are to render is to be yours and yours alone, and you and not I are to be the judges of the facts. My duty will have been fully performed when I shall have given you the law applicable to the case. I shall have given you the theories, as contended by the prosecution, and the prisoner, and stated to you the law. The prosecution charges and is bound to prove that on the 26th day of April, 1871, at the City of New-York, Mr. AVERY D. PUTNAM received a wound by a blow with an iron hook, at the hands of the prisoner, and that in consequence of that wound he died on the 26th of April, 1871. There is little or no dispute by the prisoner thus far. But just here the unfortunate question arises. The prosecution asserts that that killing, in view of the circumstances attending it, was murder in the first degree, and that presents the principal question which, in applying the law as I give it to you to the facts, as on the evidence as you shall find them, you are to determine. Before you can convict the prisoner of murder in the first degree you must be satisfied from the evidence not only that Mr. FOSTER killed Mr. PUTNAM, but that he did so from a premeditated design to effect his death; but that premeditated design must have existed for some particular length of time, and if you believe that that design was entertained by FOSTER, though you also believe that he formed it only on the moment before he struck the blow, that will be sufficient to sustain the charge of premeditation. The general theory of the prosecution is that FOSTER, after the matter upon the opening and shutting of the door of the car, sat down beside Mr. PUTNAM, asked him how far he meant to ride, received no answer, and repeated the question—still had no response from Mr. PUTNAM, and then, elevating his fist beside him, said to Mr. PUTNAM that he (FOSTER) would see to it that he (Mr. PUTNAM) would before he left the car would give him hell. It is proved since that FOSTER, a few blocks before reaching Forty-sixth-street, went to the driver of the car and asked him if he had a car-hook, and when Mr. PUTNAM was getting off, FOSTER passed around, and getting on the other side of the car, seized the hook, struck his victim on the head, or caught as him, and tried to stay his hand, but did not succeed; and as Mr. PUTNAM was alighting at Forty-sixth-street, one foot yet remaining on the step, FOSTER struck either one or two blows, which it is for you to say, producing the injuries you have heard described, from which he lingered from July 26, 1871, when he died, at St. Luke's Hospital in this City. Now, gentlemen, as I have before observed, very little if any of this is in dispute, for the learned, zealous and excellent gentlemen who principally conducted the defense, will characterize candor very clearly stated in your presence that Mr. PUTNAM was dead; they admitted that FOSTER killed him; they admitted that he killed him with the iron car-hook. What they dispute, gentlemen, is the conclusion which the prosecution ask you to draw from the facts which I have briefly narrated, and the other facts proven in the case. These facts, and the declaration sworn to by SHUMWAY that FOSTER, after the killing, said, "I'm the man, who wants me? I laid him out," are relied upon by the people to show that FOSTER acted from a premeditated design to kill Mr. PUTNAM. It is all competent evidence. You are to say what deductions shall be made from it. Does it convince you that FOSTER meant to kill Mr. PUTNAM, and that that intention was the result of premeditation, as I have explained the meaning of that term to you? If it does, then whether that premeditation was of long or short duration, whether the intent was formed half an hour, ten minutes, or but on the instant of the fatal blow, if the design were to take the life of the killing of AVERY D. PUTNAM by W. FOSTER was murder in the first degree, and you must not hesitate. You must not convict FOSTER of murder simply because Mr. PUTNAM is dead, but only because, if you so conclude, the proof satisfies you that he has been brought within the rules of law which I have given you. But if you so believe, then, though you may sympathize with his family in this dreadful catastrophe, that must not influence your verdict. Your duty to the dead, to the living, your oaths forbid it. On the part of the prisoner two principal grounds are assumed. First, that the facts relied upon by the people do not make out a design to kill, but only to beat; and, secondly, and this is also heard as bearing upon your finding as to their first proposition—that FOSTER was intoxicated. I shall speak of this latter point first.

There is no proof in the case that, if FOSTER were intoxicated, the intoxication was other than his own voluntary act. Voluntary intoxication furnishes no immunity or excuse for crime; and, even when, as here, intent is a necessary ingredient in the crime charged, intoxication will not affect the question of the prisoner's crime, unless the condition of the offender was such that he was incapable of conceiving a design; as was said that (The People ex. KERNE 61 N. Y. 386): "When one without provocation kills another with a dangerous instrument, in degree of intoxication, short of that which shows that the prisoner was at the time utterly incapable of design, legal malice will shield him from the consequence of his acts." Unless, therefore, you find his condition at the time of his act—his subsequent condition being only material so far as it may bear upon his state at the time of his crime—to have been such that his mind was incapable of forming an intent, that is, intoxication does not relieve him from the full consequence of his fearful deed. But in determining what weight you are to attach to this threat, to give Mr. PUTNAM "hell," and his declaration that he was the man that laid Mr. PUTNAM out, a less rigid rule in regard to the question of intoxication may be held. In judging that, you will consider exactly what his state was, and give to them such weight as you think they justly deserve. And when you have done that, and considered in the light of the rules I have given you, as the evidence, you will say whether the premeditated intent to kill is proven. As I have mentioned, it is claimed by the learned counsel of the prisoner that the design to kill is not fairly deducible from the proofs. That, gentlemen, is purely a question of fact which belongs to you. You must judge of it from all the circumstances attending the act; from the act itself, the instrument employed, the manner in which the blows were dealt. There is but little I can say to aid your deliberations on this point. I can but illustrate by suggesting cases. If a man strike another with his fists, or with a light cane in a mild manner, and yet death ensue, undoubtedly the intent to kill could not be said to exist; but if he took a heavy iron rod and repeatedly and violently struck his victim, wilfully and intentionally, upon those portions of the head where heavy blows are likely to result fatally, one would reasonably be likely probably to impute to the assailant sentiments so prodigious the result which naturally would follow from such an act. I do not put that as being this case, but simply by way of illustration, and not as a rule of law, but as suggestions of reason, to which you will give only such weight as you think proper, leaving, as I do, to your exclusive of the means, and the several questions of fact, what constructions you put upon it, and what inferences you will draw from the evidence. If you do not believe that FOSTER had a premeditated intent to kill Mr. PUTNAM, which of course includes as inquiry as to his condition, bearing upon his capacity under the rules I have given you to conceive a design, then the principal charge, murder in the first degree, fails and his crime is reduced to some grade of manslaughter which it will become your duty to designate, while you have the power to find him guilty of any degree of homicide which the principal case, I think it most necessary that I read to you the statutes as to manslaughter in the second, third and fourth degrees, after saying to you that on the evidence in this case, if you believe that the killing was without design to effect death, for if you do not believe that it is murder, as I have explained it to you, it is only a case of manslaughter, or if you think that his guilt is not so great as that, then apply the facts of the case to the section of the statute I now read and say within what you think the prisoner stands. I should remark that no one pretends that this is a case of either excusable or justifiable homicide, and these, therefore, can be dismissed from your mind. "The killing of a human being without design to effect death by the act, procurement or culpable negligence of any one when engaged in the perpetration of any crime or misdemeanor not amounting to felony, is manslaughter in the first degree." That is to say it could be so under the evidence in this case. "The killing of a human being in the heat of passion, but in a cruel and unusual manner, unless it be committed under such circumstances as the statutes declare excusable or justifiable homicide is manslaughter in the second degree." The killing of another in the heat of passion, which is the design which effects death by a dangerous weapon, in any case except where the killing of another is declared to be justifiable or excusable, is manslaughter in the third degree." The involuntary killing of another by any weapon, or by means neither cruel nor unusual, in the heat of passion, in cases other than such as are declared in the Statute to be excusable homicide, are manslaughter in the fourth degree. This, I believe, covers all the instructions necessary in this case, except to say that the prisoner is entitled to the benefit of any reasonable doubt you may entertain; not a fanciful doubt, but a substantial, reasonable doubt; and that while good character may sometimes in itself generate a doubt whether it shall in any particular case, is a question for the jury. The case, gentlemen, with all its momentous importance, is now about to be confided to you. It is important to the prisoner. His life is involved. But justly so also. It is important to the people, who need protection from murderers, for if lawlessness be not restrained by the firm discharge of their duty by jurors, in a proper case, the hand of the assassin which destroys one citizen today may attack another to-morrow. Carefully reviewing all the evidence, and not forgetting yourselves to the salient points, to which only I have adverted, and remembering that you are to do justice alike to the people and prisoner; you will say what the truth of this case is, and render your verdict accordingly without fear, favor, prejudice or partiality, unawayed by mere sympathy either for the prisoner or his most unfortunate little family, or for the dead or his weeping widow—and thus you and everybody must and will be satisfied, for you will have done your whole duty to yourselves, to the community and to the prisoner.

At 3:30 the jury was called into Court and stated they could not agree to their verdict. Judge GARDOZO said: Counsel, for the defense, gentlemen, have called my attention to two requests, which they presented to me in conjunction with the others, but in a manner not to indicate that they desired instructions should be given upon them to the jury. They have asked that I should instruct you in regard to them, and I add them in conjunction with what I have already said to the jury, bearing upon the general subject of this case. They ask me to charge, and I do charge you, that although FOSTER may have intended to assault, and did premeditate an assault, that is not the premeditation necessary to constitute murder. They ask me to charge, and I do charge, malice cannot be inferred alone from the character of the killing, nor alone from the instrument employed. I say to you, gentlemen, as I have said before, you must find, before you convict the prisoner of murder in the first degree, that when he killed PUTNAM he did it with the premeditated design to effect his death; and I have only to say to you that you are to consider all the circumstances—the character of the instrument used, the threats imputed to him, his subsequent declarations, the manner in which the blows were inflicted, everything connected with the occurrence—and say whether you think, when he struck the blow, it was with the intent to kill. The intent to kill must exist, but it is to be found from the circumstances, and those circumstances must be judged by you as reasonable men. With these additional instructions the jury will retire.

The jury then retired at 3:40 P. M. It was generally supposed that the jury would not take long to agree upon a verdict, but as the day wore away and the weary build on all but the principal actor in the scene, whose demeanor was throughout unchanged. Finally Judge CARDOZO ordered a recess to 9 P. M., but intimated that if in the meantime an agreement was come to he should be sent for. FOSTER was then removed from the Court, followed by a tumultuous crowd, that was only kept back by the determined action of the Police.

THE JURY LOCKED UP FOR THE NIGHT.

At 9 o'clock last evening the jury being still unable to agree, in accordance with the order of Judge CARDOZO they were locked up for the night. It is understood that at that hour the jury stood ten for a conviction of murder in the first degree, and two for a conviction of murder in the second degree.

The Rinee Homicide—Testimony for the Defense.

The trial of WM. MCNEVINS, for the murder of EDWARD HINES, was continued before Judge BEDFORD, at the Court of General Sessions yesterday. The defense called ARTHUR KINSELLA, who testified to being with the deceased at the bar on the night of the murder. He heard deceased threaten to kill the prisoner, and saw JAMES MCNEVINS have a knife with a long blade.

FELIX GOLDMAN said that he found such a knife on the floor of the bar-room just after the shooting occurred.

CHARLES DEMPSEY said that last August deceased asked him if he had seen the prisoner, and then, exhibiting a knife with a blade about six inches long, he said he intended to put that into him when he saw him.

AN old indictment was produced against deceased for shooting at, and attempting to take the life of, the prisoner. This indictment was met with a plea of "not guilty," and HINES was discharged. The prisoner's father testified as to his son's good character, and the Court adjourned until today.

The Newark Meadows Murder—Examination of Witnesses.

The examination of JOHN MAHONEY, charged with the murder of his brother, on the 4th inst., was commenced at the First Jersey City Precinct Police Court, yesterday afternoon, before Justices SEYMOUR and DAVIS. Mr. MCGEE appeared with County-Attorney GARRETTSON for the State, and CHARLES WINFIELD for the prisoner. A number of witnesses were examined, nothing of a conclusive character, however, being developed. The statements of the principal witness were so contradictory as to be unimportant, and rather favorable to the prisoner. Several persons testified to the facts of the death of the murdered man and to the finding of the body. Detective CONNOLLY testified to the fact of the arrest. One witness testified to having passed a load of barrels on the turnpike between Newark and Jersey City on the night of the 4th inst. He believed the driver to have been JOHN MAHONEY, but could not swear positively. Excepting the evidence of MICHAEL MAHONEY, the prisoner's and murdered man's brother, his was the only evidence of importance. It would contradict the statements of the prisoner that he returned by the plank road, and would be against him in that the body of the murdered man was found on the turnpike upon which the witness believed he saw the prisoner on the night of the murder. DENNIS and MICHAEL MAHONEY, two brothers of the dead man and the prisoner, gave evidence. MICHAEL, the oldest of the brothers, swore to having heard JOHN threaten his brother's life if he attempted to secure a part of his business. This and other evidence of a similar character was greatly weakened by his answers during the cross-questioning of Mr. WINFIELD. He acknowledged that he had had considerable difficulty himself with JOHN, arising from his having loaned the latter $1,000, and not being able to secure its return. Mr. WINFIELD endeavored by this examination to show that the prisoner had put witness out of his house the night previous to the arrest, which had been made in revenge for the election. The witness acknowledged that at the time he made the complaint he was at least partially intoxicated, saying he was not drunk, but might have been tight. In defending himself from the accusation of revengefulness, he stated that he had made the complaint not of his own free will but at the instigation of the authorities.

The counsel for the prisoner maintained that the evidence was insufficient to hold the prisoner. Justice SEYMOUR, however, decided to hold him for further examination, which will take place today.

Gov. TOD R. CALDWELL, of North Carolina, has published a card apologizing to the editor of the Raleigh Sentinel for so far forgetting the dignity of his position and the courtesy due a political opponent as to publicly brand him as a liar.

The young ladies of an Oswego County town have met and formally declared that they will not accept the company of any young man who uses tobacco in any form, unless the night is very dark and the road muddy, for the space of sixty days from date.

The Chicago Post asserts that the New-England roads, after a circuit, are strewn with wallets depleted of their contents, as thickly as of toads after a shower. The imaginative writer seems to take it for granted that the New-Englanders carry toads in their wallets in dry weather.

The New-London, Conn., boatmen are astir, and are talking of a citizens' regatta on the 31st inst., which shall be open to all sailboats, the contest to be for a champion pennant, and the winning boat to be ready to sail again within two weeks against any boat which shall challenge.

GERRIT SMITH has written a letter to somebody which this somebody publishes, although in it he says of this somebody (or is it a Nobody?) this: "And you are only twenty-three years old! God has blessed you with rare wisdom, integrity and firmness—very rare, for one so young."

Some of the Democrats at Harrisburg, Penn., on Tuesday night, serenaded Gov. GEARY, and, in responding, he said that, while they had some differences of opinion on political questions, he felt and acknowledged that many of his warm, long-tried and devoted and highly respected personal friends are found within the ranks of the Democracy. And then there was music by the band.

Hon. EDWARD D. HOLTON, of Wisconsin, has written a letter declining the use of his name as a temperance candidate for Governor, and presenting forcible reasons why a third party should not be organized, as proposed, at the present time, and why all loyal men should continue to support and encourage actively and zealously the Administration of President GRANT.

The Nevada Enterprise, after all it has said, takes back its numerous stories about a drying-up of Steam-boat Springs, and says that they are just as active, and present exactly the same appearance, as when first visited by white men. There is just as much steam arising from the crevices in the rocks, just as much hot air, and just as strong a smell of brimstone pervades the region as ever before.

Those Ohio Democratic doctors do not agree. VALLANDIGHAM has one platform for Montgomery County, and CAMPBELL has another for Butler County. The Columbus Statesman asserts that the Democracy of Ohio has accepted the Fifteenth Amendment from the outset in good faith; and the Cincinnati Enquirer says that the same Democracy believe that the Constitution was altered by fraud and force, and do not intend to be mealy-mouthed in their expression of the outrage.

The Louisville Ledger condemns VALLANDIGHAM's new departure in set terms. It asserts that his great weakness is overweening vanity, and that the fact that the people decided him unfit for a leader has made him sour and almost desperate. Early in the war, it says, he sought martyrdom for the sake of notoriety, and thus lost to the Democracy the North-west; and now, with his long, wordy and windy resolutions, which, when analyzed, contain very little that is new, he had better stand aside and permit the Democracy, unobstructed, to take its position on the Kentucky platform.

An attempt is about to be made to establish in Nashville, Tenn.—which (we quote from the Banner) has long enjoyed the reputation of an intellectual and literary centre—a magazine. The proprietor announces he will aim to present in it a correct portraiture of the living age, teeming with its myriads of conflicting ideas and opinions, only requiring in contributors evidence of pure and cultivated taste and expression, and expecting its readers, of every shade of opinion and thought, to eliminate for themselves whatever of truth they may find in its pages.

THE SOUTH CAROLINA KUKLUX.

An Outrage by Unknown Men in Open Day—An Officer in York County Compelled to Resign.

From the Columbia (S. C.) Union, May 22.

Information from York County, received Saturday, shows the Kuklux actively carrying out their programme of driving out of office all Republicans now holding official positions under the State Government in the upper counties. No discrimination is made as to character, or whether the incumbent is competent or incompetent. The latest case is that of Trial Justice O'CONNELL, of Fort Mills, York County. Mr. O'CONNELL is a brother of a highly esteemed Catholic priest, formerly of this city, but at present stationed in North Carolina. He had been held in the highest respect by all honest, law-abiding citizens, not only for his unsullied integrity, but also for the courtesy, benevolence and kindness which have characterized his official relations with the citizens of York County. His great sin, however, seems to have been in accepting office under the present State Government. Not long since, a band of disguised men visited his residence, but not finding him at home promised to repeat the visit. From unmistakable evidences some of the band were recognized as the near neighbors of the Trial Justice.

A few days ago the same parties, it is believed, without disguise, again visited Mr. O'CONNELL's place, went into the field where the old gentleman was at work, and after making their threats, demanded that he should resign the office of Trial Justice. Mr. O'CONNELL for some time stoutly refused, but finding himself in their power, and fearing their continued threats of personal violence, finally yielded, and signed a document drawn up by the band, resigning the office of Trial Justice. This action brings the parties, who it is said are well known, under the provisions of the Kuklux law recently enacted by Congress, and they will no doubt be prosecuted in the United States Court. We are informed that Hon. D. T. CORBIN, United States District-Attorney, has received instructions to prosecute all such cases as may be brought to his attention, and that United States Marshal L. E. JOHNSON has started for Fort Mills for the purpose of arresting and conveying the parties to Charleston for trial.

MEXICAN BANDITS.

A Desperate Fight With Desperadoes in the Panoche Mountains—One of the Ruffians Killed—Others Captured.

From the Oakland (Cal.) News, May 13.

Some two months ago Sheriff MORSE, of this county, obtained certain information of the Mexican bandits who murdered OTIO LUGOVICH, last Winter, at Scott's store, in Smaul Valley, but after chasing them several days through the Santa Cruz Mountains, they made their escape. One of these, the individual who committed the murder, was named JUAN SOTO, was a complete type of a Mexican bandit, six feet two inches in stature, weighed over 200 pounds, and was regarded as the worst man of that class who has lived since the famous JOAQUIN MURIETTA. He was the leader of a desperate band, who had their rendezvous in the mountains south-east of Gilroy, and had committed various depredations in four or five of the surrounding counties. MORSE had determined to capture the formidable SOTO, dead or alive, but, as we have stated, his first expedition was fruitless. Still the hazardous pursuit was continued, and measures known only to himself were taken to obtain the necessary information in relation to the robbers' haunts.

SECOND EXPEDITION.

Last week, Mr. MORSE heard of the desperadoes as somewhere in the mountains about fifty miles south-east of Gilroy, and started forth. At San José, he obtained the company and assistance of Sheriff HARRIS, together with a small posse of reliable men, and leaving San José in two parties, they met at the Mountain House, in Pacheco Pass. There they obtained a guide, who piloted them along the wilderness ridges to Los Banos ca[illegible]on; thence a shepherd showed them the way to a small valley in the Panoche Mountains, which is called Sanocelito, and is the rendezvous of the thieves. Information, however, of others, who have fled from justice, is only fifty miles away from civilization, in dry rocky mountains, where water men seldom or never pass.

From the top of the mountain the guide showed them three houses or cabins in the valley, and the band, with new vigor, took every precaution to be seen or recognized by the dangerous inhabitants. MORSE and his party divided into three divisions and descended. Sheriff HARRIS and three men were to go to one cabin designated; three others were directed to a second house, and MORSE and Capt. WINCHELL headed for the third. Having reached the valley, MORSE and WINCHELL rode up to the house, and seeing a Mexican at a corral some fifty yards off, asked for water, and were directed to the house, the Mexican going with them, and not seeming to suspect the nature of their business. They did not expect to find the bandits at this place, supposing them to be in the cabin six miles further on, and having hitched their horses at the corral, some distance from the house, Mr. MORSE unfortunately left his ride hanging on the saddle. The purpose of visiting the cabins was to capture the men in different rooms from that conveying information of the desperadoes, who were supposed to be in the cabin.

CONFLICT IMMINENT AND DESPERATE.

On entering the door, Mr. MORSE saw the man he was after sitting at a table, instantly covered him with his revolver, and ordered him to throw up his hands. SOTO refused, and sat sullenly watching his chance for a spring, not daring to move for his pistol. MORSE ordered him three times to hold up his hands, and, keeping his eye steadily on the wretch, drew out a pair of handcuffs, and directed WINCHELL to approach and put them on. At that moment a sister of Mexican woman seized MORSE's pistol arm, a man grabbed the other, and, while his aim was deranged, SOTO sprang behind a third person, uttering a fierce oath and drawing his own pistol. MORSE tore loose from them, and shot over the head of the man in front, and through SOTO's hat, knocking it off. Finding himself surrounded by desperate inhabitants of the cabin, he sprang out of the door, and while on the porch, SOTO twice "got the drop on him," and he stepped round the corner of the house, where the fighting commenced in good earnest, if it had not been tolerably lively before. Each fired four shots without effect; as often as SOTO brought his pistol down to a level, MORSE would dodge, and the ball pass over. At this point in the conflict, WINCHELL, having procured a double-barreled shot-gun, came round the house, fired and missed. SOTO then ran into the house, and MORSE made for his horse to get his Henry rifle. SOTO came out with a big revolver in each hand, and ran for his horse, which was hitched near by, the horse, being frightened by the firing, tore away, and SOTO not being able to catch the animal, ran down the hill for another horse some distance off, intending to make his escape.

In the meantime MORSE, having got possession of his rifle, fired at the fugitive, about 300 yards off, and shot him through the right shoulder. SOTO staggered with the wound, and at once returned toward MORSE with a pistol in each hand. At this point Sheriff HARRIS, having heard the firing, came up at full speed, and, seeing the situation of things, fired at SOTO with his Spencer rifle, but missed his aim. SOTO rushed on toward MORSE, who, getting another chance, fired again, shot the desperado through the forehead and tore the whole top of his head off. This ended one of the most exciting and terrific combats we have ever heard of, and which rid the settlements of a most pestilent and dangerous scourge.

CHARACTERISTICS OF THE BANDIT.

SOTO, as we have already stated, was a large and powerful man, a complete type of the traditional Mexican bandit, with long, black hair, heavy, bushy eyebrows, large eyes of an undefined color, and had altogether a figerish aspect. His name was well known in the State Prison, and was generally regarded as the most formidable and desperate character living on this coast. He was known to all the Mexican inhabitants in the lower counties, and was held in such dread that few or none of them dared to offend him or make known his hiding-places. It appears that, like many other desperadoes of his sort, he at length fell a victim to the ruling passion of mankind, having come from the rendezvous to visit certain seductive senoritas in that secluded valley, where he had the ill-luck to encounter the redoubtable and vengeful MORSE. The rest of the gang has returned to head-quarters, leaving the hapless chief in the society of his lady-love. It must be said for the dare-devil of the mountains that he made one of the most gallant fights on record, and fell in conflict with a foeman worthy of his lion-like courage. The slayer, having secured his splendid black horse and his valuable revolver, left SOTO where he fell, buried by his Mexican friends, who all through the fight manifested very little excitement, and seemed to regard the bloody work as an incident of their wild life. The old woman made some little outcry, but the girls manifested the utmost composure. After the fight the band of desperate inhabitants of the cabin, being prisoners all the Mexicans they met with, and among them an escaped prisoner from Santa Cruz, AMBROZIO GONZALES, a petty cattle-stealer, or something of that kind; but he was regarded as ignoble prey after the big chief, and was sent ingominiously to jail. Concerning the fugitive MORSE, it may be added that he has distinguished himself by one of the most daring and desperate acts that has ever been performed in the history of detective work on the Pacific coast, and his own life has been preserved only by the manifestation of astonishing self-possession and presence of mind. He has previously been through many perilous adventures among the more desperate characters of California, but we suppose the hand-to-hand and long-continued conflict with the chief of the brigands was the most exciting and desperate of all.

The Democrats and Their Principles.

From the Chicago Tribune, May 17.

The Democratic Party is building magnificent castles in the air in the anticipation of its return to power in the elections of 1872. It is a remarkable organization. The Confederate uniform, the prize-fighters' colors, the ballot-stuffers' slouch, with here and there some representative of a foreign banker displaying the badge of his employer, make up its escutcheon. Gentleman George, of Cincinnati; Mike McCoole, of St. Louis; Jubal Early, of Virginia; Admiral Semmes, of Alabama; Brick Pomeroy, Jim Fisk, Judge Barnard, Belmont, Barlow, Ingalls, and a majority of the San Domingo ring are representative men of the party. In the matter of politics, the composition is not the less mosaic. The two most conspicuous members of the party in Congress are RANDALL, the Pennsylvania protectionist, and BROOKS, the New-York free-trader; while the old Whigs, Know Nothings, Andy Johnson Abolitionists, and Confederate soldiers make up the remainder. In the Senate their numbers are very few, and yet, so promiscuously have they been selected, that a majority of that few are the champions of a grinding protective tariff, the special defenders of the coal, iron and salt monopolies.

The Democratic Party present nothing to commend themselves to public favor that they did not present in 1864, and again in 1868. They have had no change of men, and have proposed no change of policy. In 1868 they resolved that the war was a failure, and that it should be stopped. In 1869 they declared, in substance, that the war should be renewed to overthrow the reconstruction policy of Congress. In 1872 they have nothing to offer, save that the abolition of slavery, and the civil and political equality of all citizens, are failures, and hence that Thirteenth, Fourteenth and Fifteenth Amendments must be treated as null and void. They have no policy with regard to taxation or finance. In short, the Democratic Party has neither principles nor leaders; and it cannot achieve success, except through superior blunders on the part of the Republicans.

The Democratic Party contains within its organization almost every element which is dangerous to public liberty and to national safety. How it would govern the nation is shown by the government of the State and City of New-York—the only part of the country in which it has unquestioned and supreme power. The government of New-York is a specimen of the government which the Democratic Party proposes to give to the nation. It is a government of plunder, for the general public to feed and clothe an army of cut-throats and bullies, who neither labor nor produce, but are maintained at the public expense. We justly complain in this country of the expense of keeping any approach to a standing army; but the standing army of ruffians, ballot-stuffers, thieves and assassins, kept upon liberal pay by the Democratic Party in the City of New-York, costs the public $5 per head to the one which would be necessary to maintain a regular army of the same number of men. At present this Democratic government is confined to that City; but there is not a pine-ugly in New-York, nor in any other part of the country, nor any man opposed to decent government, who is not anxiously waiting for the hour when the Treasury of the United States shall be transferred to the archons of Tammany Hall, and the spoils of the nation be distributed among the ruffian retainers of that organization. It is a significant fact that the first instance in this country of a disinterested, unscrupulous, shameless, hireling Judiciary was created by the Democratic Party in the only portion of the country subject to its rule.

There are men who have attached to the Republican Party, and claiming to be leaders in it, who are of no profit to the party, nor any advantage to the country. But the virulent elements which are united in the Democratic Party are attracted by the common hostility to all law and government, and by the desire to overthrow every barrier which stands between peace, order, security of life and property, and the absolute reign of the lawless mob. There is no sense of restraint in that party. No man is questioned as to his personal or political antecedents. Nothing is said to any one can injure or lessen his standing. Political principles are not required. He can vote any way he pleases. He can vote to repudiate the debt, principal and interest, like MUNGEN, or he can vote to make greenbacks payable in gold, like BROOKS. He can vote to legislate the SECOND IRON like COX, or to make it 100 per cent, like RANDALL. He can spout for protection or free trade. He can vote for taxes for revenue, or vote to repeal all revenue. He can vote to compel the miners to work for starvation wages, that railroad companies may have their thirty per cent. dividends, or can incite one class of laborers to cut the throats of others, if money be in it. Upon no question of general politics, or upon any one to be decided by any Democrat expected to have any fixed opinion, except, perhaps, that to "nigger" shall vote. It is a party of cuts, clamoring to get possession of the Government; that it may carry out, on a grander scale, the New-York Government of robbery and spoliation.

In the coming contest of 1872 the Democratic Party have nothing new to present. In 1868, aided by the Confederate recruits and by the fashion of Seymourism and Blairism, it had some hope of success; but, in 1872, they have for their old issues of the war to fight over again, upon which they have been defeated, outside of New-York City, annually since 1865. They might have made a respectable showing upon the issue of taxation; but, upon that the party seems as ignorant as savages, and when it votes at all, it votes under command of KERNAN and RANDALL. It will have to enter the fight once more with no other battle cry than "Down with the niggers," and "Up with Boss TWEED," and of course will meet with as disastrous a defeat as that of 1864 or 1868, unless it shall be emblazoned in the next eighteen months by the Republican Party, which we conceive to be quite impossible.

THE MOUNTAIN HOLOCAUST.

Thrilling Experiences of New-York Tourists—Rescued in by Fire—Probable Loss of Life—Scenes of Terrible Grandeur.

Additional news from the vicinity of the Hudson River mountain-forest conflagrations, indicate a more extensive devastation of property and possible loss of life than had before been reported. Last year, about this time, an immense territory in the same counties was swept over by a destructive fire, but not such valuable land. It is impossible to be exact in figures, but it is not extravagant to say that ten thousand acres have been burned over. There is no doubt but that these fires were of incendiary origin. There are many persons of gypsy habits who lead an uncertain life as squatters on the mountain sides. A small clearing, with a log hut or cabin, a cow, a pig or two, and, possibly, a horse, constitute their home and worldly possessions. Wood-chopping, collecting bark, roots and herbs, and hunting, are their occupation. Every Spring they usually set fire to the undergrowth along the hillsides, for the purpose of benefiting the berry crop, which is invigorated by this process, and an enormous quantity of blackberries and huckleberries are annually gathered by them.

Generally these fires have been guarded, but latterly this has not been the case. Whenever efforts have been made to arrest and prosecute these parties the attempts failed for want of evidence, they always claiming that carelessness of hunters caused the mischief. The reckless destruction of millions of trees—much of it fine timber—thousands of cords of tanners' bark, and ship-joints, with fences, and even barns and dwellings, has aroused the people to concerted effort to find an effectual remedy.

Lake Village is in the centre of the burnt district. It is nestled in a lovely valley, surrounded by luxuriant meadow lands, sloping upward until the skirt of the mountain forests is reached. The mountain walls are visible in every direction. Their leafy forests and occasional cascades, form a landscape view of surpassing beauty. The horrors of the recent conflagration were indescribable. It seemed as though the world itself was on fire. A dense smoke overspread the valley by day, and currents of air occasionally brought showers of cinders, scattering them hither and thither, terrifying every one. The wild animals were driven from their dens down to the lowlands, and an endless variety of rabbits, squirrels, foxes and snakes gathered around the farm-houses and barns. The night scenes were indescribably grand. Viewed from the village, the mountains seemed to be overflowing with liquid fire, the highest peaks sending up gigantic columns of flame like colossal torches a thousand feet high. These fiery tongues licked up and ate all in their pathway, and ravenous for food to feed upon. The whirlwinds caught up quantities of sparks, and tossed them in the air, to float and scatter like pyrotechnics. At intervals huge masses of smoke would brood over the flames, and, descending, seem to smother them into darkness. Again the grand, lurid blaze would flash up as vivid as lightning, until the volume of fire seemed to fill every inch of space. Where the tan-bark and cord-wood had been piled up, there arose a towering blaze of surpassing splendor. One of these piles, which had been fired like a beacon, an infirm stronghold walled in with solid fire. The rocky cliffs and deep gorges appeared aglow, and vomited out blasts of scorching heat and glowing, red-hot light. The brooks poured down misty currents, bearing the bodies of fishes, birds and animals. The creek below was full of these floating bodies, and the terrified rest of the conflagration, as it ran rumbling, snapping and cracking through the woods, made the scene doubly grand and terrific.

Three gentlemen from this City—Messrs. GREY, of London, England; M. GARFIELD and EDWARD HORSTMAR, were out on a trouting and hunting excursion, and without any thought of the possible peril to themselves, ventured to a commanding site to enjoy the view. They were kept in wonder until the sharp crackling of the fire at their feet startled them. One glance sufficed to show that they were actually hemmed in with fire. With feelings of terror they hurried away, and by frequently rolling themselves in the mud and water, and prostrating themselves for cool air, they ran the awful gauntlet, and emerged into the green fields and fresh air. Their hair and garments, however, bore evidence of the intense heat through which they had passed. Mountain residents informed these tourists that at least three cabins inhabited by families were in ashes, and thus far no tidings had been obtained of the fate of the people occupying them. "Old SAM COO

BOWE, Secretary of State for Louisiana, commanding the objects of the Convention.

The Convention organized with the following permanent officers: President, Hon. GEORGE W. CARRINGTON, of Louisiana. Vice-Presidents, Hon. EDWARD KING, of Massachusetts; Hon. LLEWELLYN EBERLY, Wisconsin; Hon. ROBERT S. ASHOTT, of New-York.

Mr. MILLER, on taking the chair, made an address setting forth the objects for which the Convention was called.

Messrs. PAINE of Maine, SMITH of Kentucky, and WILLIAMS of New-Jersey, were appointed a committee to report the subjects to be discussed at each day's session. The Chairman was made ex officio member of the committee.

Hon. ELIAS WRIGHT was appointed to represent the interests present as a delegate at large.

The Chairman stated that he had received communications from Mr. CLARKE, Mr. SANDFORD, Mr. BARNES, the Chambers of Commerce and the Board of Underwriters, expressive of their willingness to submit their views to the Convention upon subjects of importance connected with the object for which they had assembled.

The Convention adjourned until 10 M. today.

A RAID OF THE ROUGHS.

Police Expedition to Long Island—Inspector Walling Disperses the Prize Fighters and their Friends—Escape of the Principals and Capture of the Seconds.

The raid of Inspector WALLING, with 100 police men, at daylight yesterday morning, upon the rowdies assembled at Cold Spring Harbor, Suffolk County, Long Island, to witness the prize fight between BILLY EDWARDS and TOM COLLINS, was the sensation of yesterday to sporting circles.

For several days the scene of the contemplated outrage was well known outside of sporting circles, and many of the residents of Hempstead, who are wealthy merchants of New-York, appealed to Superintendent KELSO to save them from the vandals. As a first step to accomplish their desires, Mr. KELSO sought to arrest the principals, which would have effectually prevented a fight at Hunkington or any where else, but to his intense disappointment he found the men had been in training outside the City, and were already beyond his jurisdiction, nor could he learn their whereabouts so that they might be arrested by local authority. In this dilemma Superintendent KELSO determined to take the responsibility of sending a sufficient force to the scene of the fight, where they had no legal authority, to stop the brutal exhibition and seize all concerned in it, either as principals or spectators. Having consulted with the Police Commissioners and received their approval, Superintendent KELSO yesterday afternoon sent for Inspector WALLING and Capt. TODD, commanding the Harbor Police boat Seneca, to whom he gave his instructions. Inspector WALLING then furnished with a detail of one hundred men, picked from all the precincts, and was given as assistants in command, Sergt. DOUGLASS, Sixth Precinct, Sergt. WEED, Thirteenth Precinct, Sergt. LEARY, Eighteenth Precinct, and Sergt. JAMES, Twentieth Precinct. The rough-looking interruption to the ordinary business of the Police Headquarters interfered with after they had left, hurried their departure by the steamer Seth Low so much that BILLY CLARK, backer of COLLINS, and other prominent roughs, were left behind.

Inspector WALLING, finding his birds had taken flight, left a police man on board the Police steamer Seneca, at the Battery, and the vessel steamed away at 10½ P. M. The boat arrived off Cold Spring Harbor about 3½ A. M., and lay off in the Sound for an hour and a half, as Inspector WALLING feared to cause principals and spectators while on land to fight shy of us. At a little before 5 the boat steamed into the harbor and up to the dock. While she was yet a mile away she was sighted and recognized by the ruffians ashore, and WALLING was puzzled to rescue some of them running away from the hotel near the dock, and to their astonishment and second fear so many of them being there if the fight was going on. Just before the boat reached the wharf several men rushed from the house, jumped into a wagon and drove rapidly away, and it was subsequently found that this wagon contained the same men COLLINS and EDWARDS.

As Police Police got on shore as soon as possible, and pushed out into the country on a run in pursuit of the roughs, who were flying in all directions. One party under Sergt. O'BRIEN, of the Harbor Police, soon, found the ground where the fight was to have occurred, where the stakes were already driven for the ring and other preliminary preparations had been made. In the neighborhood of this spot, which was a secluded neck in the forest, Sergt. O'BRIEN arrested DOCKET HARRIS, second of EDWARDS, and JAS. SMITH, second of COLLINS. Inspector WALLING, finding that the fight had not even been begun and that the principals had escaped, sent out messengers to the fugitives hiding in the woods that if they would come in and go on board their boat he would send them back to New-York without placing them under arrest. His object was to clear the country of the roughs, and by giving the fugitives the range of the neighborhood ample proofs of their industry and dexterity in the sloshing art, and he was substantially successful. Nearly all the outlaws came in to the dock, went on board the Seth Low, which was placed in charge of Sergts. LEARY and DOUGLASS, with thirty men, and then permitted to steam off, having over 100 of the disappointed ruffians on board. To close this part of the narrative, it may be added that the steamer arrived in due time at Pier No. 24 East River, where the roughs were all permitted to go to various resorts to their usual haunts, which, were immediately filled with gross exaggerations of the adventures of the morning.

About 1 o'clock Inspector WALLING returned to the City, and immediately took his prisoners, HARRIS and SMITH, before Justice DOWLING, at the Tombs Police Court, where they were arraigned by that Magistrate. Justice DOWLING said that hereafter the most strenuous efforts would be made by the authorities to suppress prize-fighting. So far as he was concerned, a mere advertisement or announcement of a prize-fight in this city was sufficient for the granting of a warrant for the arrest of everybody in any way concerned in it. The prisoners were then required to give bail in $1,000 each for their good behavior for one year, and not being able to do so at the moment were committed to prison.

THE SEARS SCANDAL.

Continuance of the Examination Before Justice Dowling—Margaret O'Keefe's Story.

The examination in the Sears assault case was resumed before Justice DOWLING, at the Tombs Police Court, yesterday morning. Dr. EDWARD I. SEARS, the accused, was promptly in Court, attended by his counsel, Judge WATERBURY, and several friends.

The complainant, Mrs. MARGARET O'KEEFE, was again placed on the stand, and said that her husband's name is JOHN O'KEEFE, and she does not know his present whereabouts, as he left her six months ago on account of this affair. At the time he left he was employed, and had been doing nothing for some time previously. Some time after he left she wrote to Dr. SEARS, informing him of the fact, as she felt aggrieved at her husband's leaving her on Dr. SEARS' account. Being asked to state the contents of this letter, she replied that she could not remember, but had the letter and must produce it. Dr. SEARS said he never produced or preserved the letters of women, and this, according to his practice, had been destroyed. She stated that she had written one other letter to Dr. SEARS, but none since. It transpired that the person to whom she addressed had no letters in his possession from Mrs. O'KEEFE, and she being required to state the contents, said she told him (Dr. SEARS) his father was an illegitimate son of Lord KILDARE, while her father was respectable, and he (Dr. SEARS) could not make a fool of him. She also told him she did not come to America to be, for her learning, as what she had was paid for in Ireland, and she concluded this letter by declaring she would have satisfaction for his conduct toward her.

At this point Judge WATERBURY devoted the cross-examination to obtaining precise, controvirial details of all that occurred between complainant and accused, during each of the several interviews between them at the office of the latter. Much of this was uninteresting and unimportant, except as points to hang legal quibbles upon. During this examination she repeated her previous statements as to his giving her $5 at the first interview. Her second visit to his office, when the first of the alleged assaults was made, was minutely described by the complainant, who seemed to remember her every word of what happened. She said how he had complimented her as the best looking of the family, and that he had asked her if she would come to him once a week if he got her husband on the Police. In answer to her inquiry as to why he wished to see her he made an insulting proposition, which she indignantly repelled, saying she had been educated as a servant. He insisted upon her compliance, saying he would remember her in his will, and meantime he would not only furnish her husband with a good place, but she could have all the money she needed. At this point the complainant was asked with vertizy, and being taken from the room was placed under the care of Police Surgeon KARKESTON. She recovered in a few minutes, and the examination being resumed, was confined to the details of the second interview, in answer to her direct demand she told him she wrested across the sidewalks of New-York before she would commit a mortal sin. He then said he would not lose her, and the saying she was afraid to go without a letter, he sat down and wrote one to her husband on the Third-avenue Railroad. She sat down on the lounge by an open window, and when he had finished writing the letter he sat down beside her and read it to her, after which the assault as described in her affidavit took place. The testimony upon this point was very precise and voluminous, nor did the complainant vary materially from the accounts of the affair which she has heretofore given. The case was further adjourned until Saturday morning.

THE JULY RIOTS OF 1863—A LARGE JUDGMENT AGAINST THE CITY.

Orr vs. The Mayor, &c., of New-York.—This action, which was to recover against the City for the value of an elevator belonging to plaintiff, destroyed by the mob in the July riots of 1863, the facts of which have already appeared in the TIMES, has been concluded by a verdict in favor of plaintiff for the full value of the property, ($35,000,) and interest, amounting in all to $63,988 40.

Messrs. Santvoord and James C. Carter, for plaintiff; Van Vranderpool, of Brown, Hall & Vanderpool, for defendant.

SUPERIOR COURT—TRIAL TERM—PART I.

—MAY 24.

Before Judge Jones and a Jury.

RISK, JR.'S COTTON SPECULATIONS.

James Fisk, Jr. vs. Gorham Gray.—This action was brought to recover $16,000 transferred to defendant for the purposes of cotton speculations. The plaintiff's side of the story is, that in June, 1869, he agreed with defendant to go into joint cotton speculations, and under this agreement gave to defendant the money in suit to be deposited with a trust company as a margin in the transactions, and that such deposit was never made by defendant. Defendant's story is that they entered into an agreement to go jointly into cotton speculations, plaintiff to furnish the capital and defendant the labor, in making purchases and sales, the profits to be divided between the parties in the proportion of two-thirds to plaintiff and one-third to defendant; that under such agreement, and in the hope of controlling the cotton market, the parties entered into speculations; that defendant made purchases of "spot" cotton, and entered into contracts for "futures," going out his own money therefor to an amount exceeding that received from the plaintiff. When the speculations were finally wound up, it was found that there was a loss of $27,000, half of which, under the agreement, should be borne by plaintiff, but which he refused to pay. The defendant thereupon commenced an action before Judge Blatchford, in the United States Circuit Court, to compel an accounting between the parties. Thereupon the plaintiff commenced this action to recover his $16,000, obtaining an order of arrest against defendant on an affidavit alleging misappropriation of the money. The plaintiff contends that the $16,000 was given to the defendant with the understanding that it should be made a special deposit in a trust company, while the defendant contends that the money was paid to him to be used generally in their joint venture, and that he is not, therefore under what he claims to be a partnership agreement. The plaintiff appeared yesterday, and in response to questions put by defendant's counsel, testified as follows:

Q.—Look at this paper, and say if that is your signature (answer of witness in United States Court shown him)? A.—It is.

Mr. STICKNEY reads the answer, in which witness admits that he went into cotton speculation with Mr. GRAY, and was to receive two-thirds of the profits.

WITNESS—Do I say over my signature in that paper that I was a partner with Mr. GRAY?

Mr. STICKNEY—What you say over your signature is, that you agreed to divide the profits.

A.—It is as I say, mentioned in your answer in the case in the United States Court, the same $16,000 that you sue for in this case? A.—I should say it is.

Cross-examined by Mr. DUDLEY FIELD.

Q.—Do you remember whether you ever read that answer? A.—I do not.

Q.—Did you ever read it before? A.—I think not.

Q.—How long have you known GRAY? A.—Six, seven, or eight years. He is from Boston, I think.

Q.—What was the occasion of your giving him $16,000? A.—Do you mean the reason why I gave it?

Q.—What was said between you that led you to give the money? A.—My real reasons I have never stated.

Q.—The question is, what transpired between you and Mr. Gray before you gave him this $16,000? A.—My reasons were for giving this money, would be two distinct things.

Q.—What transpired? A.—He kept "a bothering" me about it almost constantly; he talked of gold wires and profits and all such things as these sharpers tell an innocent man. (A general laugh.) He said there was to be no end of profits. I thought no end of losses.

After some further testimony by other witnesses, of no public interest, the case was adjourned.

Dudley Field, Jr., with David Dudley Field as advisory counsel, for plaintiff; Stickney & Whipple for defendant.

THE COST OF AN ILLEGAL SEIZURE—DAMAGES $6,000.

Louise Donat Wehle vs. Henry L. Butler et al.—The plaintiff (did business as a dry-goods store at No. 745 Third-avenue, and, in December, 1869, the defendants' firm of Butler, Brown & Clegg caused attachments to be issued out of the Marine Court, and, in pursuance of the 6th of December, defendants entered the plaintiff's store, accompanied by the Sheriff and other persons, and removed all the plaintiff's goods, leaving nothing in the store but the empty shelves. The attachments under which the defendants proceeded were afterward held to be void, were set aside by the Marine Court, and then plaintiff brought her action for damages sustained by reason of this unlawful taking and detaining of her property. Considerable testimony was given at the trial as to the value of the property, plaintiff claiming that it was worth $10,000, and defendants that it was worth only $2,000.

Judge JONES held that the attachments were void, and that plaintiff was entitled to recover, leaving the amount to be assessed by the jury.

The jury found a verdict for plaintiff for $4,955, and the Court granted an extra allowance of $150.

For the plaintiff, Charles Wehle and Louis H. Bowen.

ANOTHER PREMATURE CAR-START.

Allen Carroll vs. The Third-avenue Railroad Company.—The plaintiff in this action was getting off a Third-avenue car on the 18th of January, 1870, and before she was safely off the driver started the car, throwing her on the street, and inflicting injuries to her ankle which still causes an impediment to her walking. She asks $5,000 damages. Case still on.

Ex-Recorder Smith for plaintiff; A. J. Vanderpoel, of Brown, Hall & Vanderpoel, for defendant.

SUPERIOR COURT—TRIAL TERM—PART II.

—MAY 24.

Before Judge Monell and a Jury.

A RAILROAD ACCIDENT.

Owen O'Reilly vs. The Harlem Railroad Company.—This action, which was for injuries to plaintiff's ankle by one of defendant's cars, the facts of which have already appeared in the TIMES, has been concluded by a verdict in favor of plaintiff for $200.

WEDNESDAY, May 24—P. M.

The sales of Gold dropped off to 111¼ ₹ cent. this forenoon, but subsequently recovered to 111¾ ₹ cent. on a somewhat steadier feeling in the Foreign Exchanges. The rates on London are 110¾@110¾ ₹ cent. 60 days, and 110¾@110¾ ₹ cent. short sight. The collections of May Interest at the Treasury today, for foreign account, amount to $1,200,000, which sum has, of course, in one shape or another, to be remitted for.

The Public Funds are firm. The total of 5-20s offered to the Sinking Fund today is $5,216,000, out of which $2,000,000 were accepted by the Treasury, at an average of about 111.23 ₹ cent. and accrued Interest in Gold. Adding the premium on the Gold Interest, the price is close upon the market value of Gold. These weekly purchases will no doubt be continued by the Secretary of the Treasury until the price of 5-20s in the open market advances, in relation to Gold, to a small premium, when he will fall back upon his privilege of calling in the earlier issues of the 5-20s by moderate installments for redemption in Gold.

At the Stock Exchange, there was a weaker feeling in some of the Pacific Railroad Bonds. The incomes of the Union Company sold down from 86¼ to 83 ₹ cent., recovering to 84¼ ₹ cent. The rapid multiplication of the Pacific schemes and the enormous sums proposed to be realized thereon, give the public confidence pause. The eagerness to project and press the building of these Roads on borrowed capital invite criticism in more than one direction; first, as to the force and financial ability of the chief promoters, or the distinguished names, if you please, under which they are launched; and, secondly, their bearing, by competition, at tempting rates of Interest, in the Money markets of the world, on lines already advanced to reasonable success, but whose credits suffer from the apprehension that there may be too much of this good work for the population and business to be served by it. The free use of the name of Mr. THOMAS A. SCOTT in Pacific enterprises and in Pennsylvania lleases and combinations, East and West, of which he is the ruling spirit, must soon begin, if it has not already done so, to cheapen his influence. Indeed, it is not too much to say, in view of the magnitude of his undertakings, that it seems impossible in the wise order of Providence, that any one head should be able to carry all he is supposed to know of railroad affairs.

The Railway Stock Market was irregular in temper, and somewhat eccentric in prices, on rather a moderate business. The Lake Shore movement halts, and the Erie revival of last week, is almost lost sight of, while increased interest was shown in Rock Island, and a sudden reawakening of business, at advanced figures, in the North-west Stocks. New-York Central, St. Paul's, Union Pacifics, Wabash, &c., were all comparatively quiet. On the Miscellaneous list the advance continued in Consolidated Coal of Maryland, and Western Telegraph was fairly supported at 60@60¼ ₹ cent.

After the late Boards the following quotations were made, as compared with Tuesday night. The Union Pacific Incomes were 84@83 ₹ cent. at the close. The Land Grants and First Mortgages were but partially affected by the decline in the Incomes. The Central Pacific Mortgages were higher and firm.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

EUROPE.

The disappointed Communists are wreaking their vengeance on the public edifices and historical buildings of Paris. The Palace of the Tuileries is said to be entirely destroyed by fire, and the Louvre was burning, with a hope remaining that the magnificent galleries of art might yet be saved. The Palaces of the Legion of Honor and of the Council of State had been fired, and other edifices were said to be in flames. An explosion occurred at 1 P. M., near the centre of the city, believed to have been caused by blowing up the Hotel de Ville. Fighting from behind barricades was continued yesterday by the insurgents, but the forces of the Assembly steadily advanced from position to position, and the Federals were believed to be endeavoring to escape toward Belleville and Pantin. The Communal authorities, in reply to Gen. FABRICE's demand for the surrender of the Nationals implicated in the attack on Mr. WASHBURNE's residence, replied that they had ordered that the Embassy be held inviolate, and on hearing of the attack had ordered a Court-martial; but, as the guilty ones fled and could not be found, all they could do was to express the sorrow and indignation felt. The London Times regards the settlement of the Alabama claims, as proposed in the Treaty of Washington, as honorable to England, and declares the objects of both countries realized in its provisions, and that both countries have practically ratified it. The last census shows the population of London to be a little over three and a quarter millions. The result of the "Derby" yesterday was a general disappointment, as the favorite was "nowhere," and eight to one were the odds against the winner, Baron ROTHSCHILD's Zephyr colt. Albert Victor was second, and King of the Forest was third. Seventeen horses ran.... The German Reichstag has approved the additional clause of the postal treaty between the United States and Germany, reducing the rate to two and a half groschen (five cents) per half ounce.

GENERAL.

In the United States Senate, yesterday, a memorial of claims against the Government of Venezuela, to the amount of $250,000, for losses to the claimants from the failure of that Government to fulfill its obligations connected with the construction of the railroad from Caracas to Paiaro, was referred to the Committee on Foreign Relations. The Senate went into Executive Session on the treaty. After speeches by several Senators, the treaty was ratified, by a vote of 50 to 12, at 11 o'clock last night. The Senate adjourned till to-day.

Advices from Hayti state that the new Ministry has been dissolved through dissensions. A financial crisis is expected and a loan to the Government is improbable. All males between eighteen and sixty are to be impressed into the army. The City of St. Pierre has been declared in a state of siege. A great Catholic revival is in progress in Trinidad, in consequence of reported miracles by an image of the virgin.

Advices from Aspinwall say the steamer Moselle, now manned by priests, had seized a quantity of coal belonging to the Pacific Navigation Company, and had landed 200 men within five miles of Panama. All efforts at reconciliation have failed, and cannon are planted in the streets of Panama.

The Presbyterian Convention in Chicago passed yesterday's session in the consideration of reports and matters pertaining to the welfare of the Church.

More fires are reported from various sections of the country. A cotton-mill was nearly destroyed in Norwich, Conn. A factory in Delaware, Ohio, was also damaged to the extent of $50,000. The Exchange Hotel, in Alliance, Ohio, was burned down. A flouring-mill near Newark, Ohio, was destroyed, and other destructive fires occurred in other parts of the West. A bank and several buildings were destroyed at Providence, R. I. Damage, $50,000.

The Reformed Presbyterian Synod continued in session yesterday, at Philadelphia, and transacted some business, none of a very important character.

The International Convention of the Young Men's Christian Association commenced its session yesterday morning, at Lincoln Hall, Washington. Nearly all the States were represented, with many delegates from the British Provinces. JOHN WANAMAKER, of Philadelphia, was elected permanent President.

We are indebted to the purser of the Havana steam-ship St. Louis for courtesies.

The Senate has confirmed the nomination of JAMES R. PARTRIDGE, of Maryland, to be Minister Plenipotentiary and Envoy Extraordinary to Brazil.

G. NEWMAN, a native of New-York, and assistant architect on the new City Hall, San Francisco, was found dead yesterday morning in the Occidental Hotel, in that city, having shot himself through the head. NEWMAN had been drinking to excess lately.

By direction of the President, a Board to retire disabled officers, in pursuance of Act of Congress of the 3d of August, 1861, will convene at Philadelphia on the 30th inst.

DAVID MONTGOMERY, who murdered his wife in Rochester last November, has been convicted of murder in the first degree, and remanded for sentence.

The subscriptions to the new loan yesterday were $112,300. The internal revenue receipts were $618,000.

The President yesterday handed over to the Internal Revenue Commissioner $25, which had been inclosed to the former with the statement that it belonged to the Internal Revenue Department.

The Treaty of Washington has been ratified in the Senate by a vote of 50 to 12. In voting down all amendments, the Senate showed its appreciation of the almost unanimous verdict of the public opinion of the country. The terms were such as both nations could subscribe with honor, and they are accordingly accepted by the great majority in Great Britain as well as the United States, as upon the whole a satisfactory basis for the settlement of existing disputes. The opposition to the Treaty in England will be found, when tested, to be as weak as it has proved to be here. In any case, the Treaty is safe, since in England the treaty-making power is constitutionally a prerogative of the Crown; and this prerogative, though seldom likely to be exercised in defiance of the opinions of the representatives of the people, will certainly be used now. There will be, as the Ministry has already conceded, a fair opening given for discussing the provisions of the Treaty. But there is no probability whatever of the English Cabinet being thrown out at present by a no-confidence vote on the Treaty. We may fairly hope that a dangerous series of disputes will now be finally adjusted.

A Party Without Principles.

No intelligent man can have followed the discussions which have been going on in Democratic circles during the past few months, without perceiving very clearly that the party is still in a state of chaos. It has neither leaders nor a policy. The only solid ground it had was cut from under its feet in the rebellion, and since then it has been merely struggling from one morass to another. It can now do nothing but hover on the outskirts of the Republican camp, and make "demonstrations" against it which end in renewed disappointments. There is nothing like unanimity in the party upon any one point. When one of its spokesmen delivers an opinion, his voice is instantly drowned in a wild tumult of contradictions. Indeed, the Democrats have been much more indebted to discontented Republicans latterly than to their own regular supporters. Senator SCHURZ has proved a more useful ally to them than any one of their recognized advisers. The reason is that they have no ideas of their own which have the faintest chance of being acceptable to the people, and therefore they are playing the game which some people describe as "waiting upon Providence." They can originate nothing themselves, but they hope they may gain some advantage from the mistakes of their opponents. They are groping in the dark for a policy, and eagerly clutch at the hands of men like Senator SCHURZ, on the desperate chance that they may be led by an accident to find something which will suit them.

The general issue upon which they fall back, when special issues fail them, is that the "Constitution has been strained." Now, supposing that to be the fact, which party is responsible for it? In revolutionary times all Constitutions, written or unwritten, are very likely to be severely strained, and the faction which precipitated the strife is generally held accountable for any subsequent vicissitudes. It is a spectacle not without its ludicrous side to behold the Democrats, who tried to tear the Constitution into a thousand pieces, complaining now that the men who preserved it are straining some of its provisions, and that they, the Democrats, cannot bear to see it injured. Why was not this anxiety displayed a few years ago? What would there be left of the Constitution today, or of the Government which was founded on it, or of the people who obeyed it, if the Democrats could have had their will in 1861? It is wonderful what reverence they possess for that instrument now. They are ready to fall down and worship it. The World, for instance, falls into a kind of religious ecstacy over its peculiar readings of the document every other day, yet the World did all that it could to assist the party which proposed to dissolve the United States, and construct two separate Governments out of the fragments. It tried then to make out that this project was in harmony with the Constitution, just as it now endeavors to prove that the party which saved the Constitution is acting in violation of its principles. Mr. JOHN Q. ADAMS, who is an able man, and not a trickster or a dreamer, appreciates the true position of the two parties in relation to the Constitution with perfect accuracy. He is too keen a man not to see, and too candid a man not to acknowledge, that the Secessionists alone menaced the existence of the Constitution. "The Constitution was struck down," he says in his recent letter, "by the assault upon Sumter, as all Constitutions must necessarily fall before the face of the supreme arbitrament of war. It can never be lifted up while war is flagrant. The people will never resign the attitude of hostile vigilance, which is the real significance of the present Administration, until they know that no one of their war trophies is longer disputed."

These are the words of a thoughtful man, having a soul within him nobler than that of any mere party hack; and they are much better entitled to attention than anything which has recently appeared in Democratic journals hereabouts. These two words, "hostile vigilance," in themselves express a policy—and it is a policy of which the Republicans are proud. The Democrats have confidently proved the need which exists of continued and unwearied vigilance, and the Republicans would deserve the execration of history, notwithstanding all their past services, if they now allowed the enemy to recover the main part of what they have lost. We have a policy to abide by, and no one who has eyes and will use them can fail to realize its importance. Is it to the Democrats that the country would be willing to commit the care of the Constitution—those very Democrats who so recently were forcibly withheld from utterly abolishing it? Do we ask the burglar whom we have caught entering the window at night to come in and guard our property while we return to our slumbers?

But, says another Democratic journal, you are investing the President with "Imperial power," we shall soon have "no Constitution left," "the Empire is imminent." No one has hitherto supposed that the Executive branch of the Government gained much by the "strains" put upon the Constitution. Some people have watched the legislative branch with more uneasiness—but to talk of an Empire being at hand is like the ravings of men whose minds are a little disordered. The Ku-klux bill, upon which this terrible alarm is raised, is probably the last of all the measures necessitated by the Democratic revolution—and it is a measure which cannot be put in force until disorders have broken out in a State, so serious and so formidable, that the Governor of that State will be obliged to declare his inability to suppress them. It is a measure for preserving social order, without which all governments are an idle name. To found on such a bill as this the cry that you have made the Republic an Empire is to the last degree absurd. Sensible Democrats who disapprove of the bill do not believe that it makes the President an Emperor. Mr. ADAMS says nothing of that kind. The general result of all this is that the Democrats dare not or cannot declare their policy, but are obliged to fall back on vague talk about the "Constitution"—while the Republicans are determined not to allow any more armed insurrections to arise for the purpose of subverting that Constitution. This is a policy good enough for Republicans at present, so far as purely national politics are concerned.

Paris in the Hands of Its "Friends."

If the death-struggle of the Commune be a fair sample of MAZZINI's long-predicted "wars of the people," the world has had already more than enough of them. The wars of the dynasties were bad enough, but they had for the most part a merely human badness about them. This latest mode of warfare is simply fiendish. The Prussians bombarded Paris, as we know now, with considerable reluctance, and took every precaution that could have been expected of them to spare monuments whose beauty or whose historical associations made them as much the property of the civilized world as of France. Yet the Prussians were very freely characterized as something worse than Vandals, by these very Parisians who are creating a wilder havoc than their foes would ever have wrought. Unborn generations will curse the memory of the Commune for the deeds of yesterday. The Tuileries, with all its sad and shameful memories, has none more shameful than this, that its destruction was planned and executed by Frenchmen, who madly thought to extinguish the memory and the fame of its royal occupants by burning the palace which had sheltered them. The first revolution, with all its excesses, had no such acts as these. The sans-culottes razed the Bastille—the Communists laid the Hôtel de Ville in ruins, burned the Tuileries, and almost succeeded in robbing mankind of the priceless treasures with which centuries of genius have filled the Louvre. The palace of the Quai d'Orsay, that used to receive the meetings of the Council of State, has been fired too. So has the Prince of SALM's palace, devoted to the use of the Legion of Honor. "Honor and Fatherland" is the device surmounting the portico of this latter building. And now the champions of the liberties of Paris and the professed apostles of her regeneration, have sacrificed both in an orgy of wanton destruction.

Whatever latent virtues there may have been in the Communistic movement, it will never recover from the ineffaceable degradation of the 24th of May. It is altogether beside the mark to remember the floating vagabondage of all nations which obeyed the orders of the Central Committee. We shall, doubtless, hear before long that the real Vandals of the revolt were the thousands of Irish Fenians, the Belgians, the Poles, the Garibaldians, the recreant Germans, or the fanatical Englishmen, who fought under the red flag. But there is no explaining away the fact that the immolation of some of the noblest historical and architectural monuments which France or the world can show, was deliberately planned and prepared against the hour of defeat by the Committees of the Hôtel de Ville. Defenders of the Commune, like Mr. FREDERICK HARRISON, of the Fortnightly Review, have claimed our admiration for the simplicity and efficacy of the rule of the workmen of Paris. When the historical whitewashers have done with NERO, it will be time to seek an apologist for the completed régime of the men of the faubourgs. The despot was perhaps the more ignoble of the two, since he fiddled while his capital was burning, while they fought like desperadoes under similar circumstances. An individual case of moral monstrosity can, however, hardly appal us like its exhibition by a mass of professedly reasonable beings. The tyrant belonged to a type which history has not reproduced. The excesses of the mob of Paris derive their terrible significance from the fact that we might, any day, see them repeated. We have Mr. HARRISON's authority for stating that the destruction of the Column Vendôme showed the sympathy of the Communal leaders with the opinions of AUGUSTE COMTE. In this latest carnival, we wonder, also an outcome of what the Apostle of Positivism "publicly advocated in Paris twenty years ago?" Its friends claim that "the bloody vengeance of the Monarchists" will not blot out the Commune from the memory of the future. This is perfectly true. It has gained during the last two days an ignominy so colossal that future generations will be compelled to ransack the records of Mohammedan fanaticism for its parallel. Its sins against civilization are manifest, its sins against liberty will shortly be made equally apparent. The cause of municipal freedom has received for the present generation the stamp of insane license. Its enemies will not be slow to take advantage of its degradation, and its friends will hardly dare to claim any fellowship, however distant, with the men who left the fairest portion of Paris a heap of ashes, merely because they hated the dead who had embellished it, and the living who were coming into its possession.

The Police and the Street-Cars.

We are glad to see that the Police Commissioners will have an opportunity to decide the correctness of the views held by the civil Police Sergeant, who informed our correspondent, "E. G. W.," that no policeman would or could interfere to protect passengers on street-cars from any abuse short of violence constituting an actual breach of the peace. A test case has been made by the Fourth-avenue Railway Company, which may achieve the desirable settlement of this vexed question. About a week ago, one of the cars of that line was entered by three drunken and noisy roughs, who soon made themselves obnoxious to the rest of the passengers. The conductor's remonstrances were without effect, and he therefore stopped the car and summoned the nearest patrolman. That officer, however, declined to eject the offenders himself, but promised to protect the conductor in doing so. The latter thereupon put the three men out of the car, the officer standing by to see that they attempted no violence. Last Monday morning the conductor entered a complaint before the Police Commissioners against the patrolman for dereliction of duty, stating, at the same time, that he had no fault to find himself, and that the charge was made by instruction of the Superintendent of the road.

This, it will be seen, is a very similar case to that related by our correspondent, and if anything is not so strong. The men ejected had offended only in using boisterous and profane language, to the annoyance of their fellow passengers. They had not, so far as we are informed, threatened any person on the car, or violated any express rule of the company, such as the prohibition of smoking. The question, therefore, for the Commissioners to consider, is whether peaceable citizens are to be protected in public conveyances from insult, from gross infracture of common rights, from verbal as well as physical assaults, and whether their officers shall be required to preserve the same order on a street car and by the same means as in a theatre or any other public assemblage. In the latter place, there is no doubt that "R. G. W.'s" assailant would at once have been ejected by the Police, if not arrested. It is difficult to see why the rule which operates in one case, should not be enforced in the other.

We trust that the Commissioners will give this matter their serious attention, and let us know at once if their Sergeant was right in his rather narrow interpretation of a passenger's rights and a patrolman's duties. And if, as we confidently expect, they should give a more liberal construction to the law, the sooner their officers are instructed accordingly the better. Already in a Western Court, the Maine decision, defining it to be the duty of a passenger carrier to protect his patrons, not only from injury but from insult, as well by his own servants as by other passengers, has been confirmed. In the latter case, a passenger had entered and taken a seat in a car reserved expressly by a conspicuous notice for ladies and their escort only. When requested to retire by the conductor he refused, and was immediately set upon by that officer and two brakemen and severely beaten. A suit for damages against the Company brought him a verdict of nearly three thousand dollars, and what is of more importance to the public, a substantial affirmation of the doctrine enunciated by the Maine Courts.

With this view of the law once firmly and universally established, there ought to be no longer any such difficulty or doubt as that under which our correspondent suffered, and the Sergeant and Patrolman spoken of evidently labored. If a passenger on any public conveyance is entitled to protection from insult, and if the carrier, under pain of exemplary damages, is required to furnish that protection, insult of any description (and disorderly conduct or offensive language is an insult) becomes a violation of law and a breach of the public peace. Under such circumstances, the duty of Police officers would seem to be plain. In the case cited, wherein complaint has been brought—though the Company, we think, acted properly in bringing the question to authoritative decision—the Patrolman is hardly to be blamed. He seems to have acted with discretion, and in accordance with what appears to be in the force the general conception of his duties. Speaking broadly, it would be of little practical difference whether disorderly passengers were ejected by a policeman, or by the conductor acting under his protection. In a legal point of view, however, and for the sake of its moral influence, it would be well to have an exact definition of the powers and duties of a Police officer in such emergencies.

A Cup of Tea.

A new branch of industry has sprung up in China. The vast demand of outside barbarians for the fragrant herb "that cheers but not inebriates," has been the parent of a line of trade that is now said to be extremely flourishing. Rumors of the liberties taken with this choicest product of the Flowery Kingdom have long been rife. We have all heard of devices for giving artificial color and flavor to tea. As soon as particular brands have grown popular, our friend, the honest Chinaman, has displayed marvelous dexterity in counterfeiting them with cheaper sorts. What with the adroit use of chemicals, and the employment of divers subtle arts taught by long experience, the guileless Oriental long cheated his customers to his heart's content. In lands where tea and coffee are produced, the natives naturally learn to regard with contempt the taste of the foreigner. The beverage that is cloyed and disguised with sugar, they conceive, might as well be of inferior grade as not. If we intend to thicken our drink with honey, its original basis certainly becomes of less consequence. Still, European and American tea-drinkers did not care to be specially doctored for in this manner. Of late years, therefore, adulteration has been more sharply watched than formerly, and there is reason to think that the more unwholesome forms of it have been considerably repressed. The new device, in truth, is not one of counterfeiting, but of what we might call inflation.

It is announced on excellent authority that more than half a million pounds of willow leaf were made up at Shanghai last season, and palmed off as green tea. The willow leaf as prepared cannot be distinguished from green tea by the eye; but to cover the difference in taste, it has to be mixed with tea before being sold. It can be produced at a cost of about four cents a pound, and can be used in the proportion of twenty to forty per cent. of the whole mixture—so that it is easily seen what a profit the "little game" can be made to represent to the seller. According to Mr. MEDHURST, a resident official of the British Government, the preparation of the willow leaf for mixture with tea is openly practiced on the Hong-kea side of the Soo-chow Creek, and it "has become an industry which claims an important share of the attention of the villages of that and other localities." The banks of the small streams which abound in that region are thickly planted with willow-trees, the young leaves of which are collected in April and May, very much in the manner that the tea leaf is gathered. The leaves are then distributed in heaps on hard threshing-floors, and allowed to ferment slightly in the sun. Afterward the leaves are treated exactly like those of the ordinary tea-plant. That is to say, they are arranged in classes according to size, and then roasted in common tea-ovens. The blended stuff thus ultimately produced is probably not deleterious to health; but it is not the less a fraud than that which was lately discovered in London, and which consisted in selling for tea, intermixed with the genuine article, a large quantity of "dirt and steel filings." Probably the "dirt" consisted of tea-dust, which is sometimes sold by the chest at trade sales in China for about two cents a pound, and which subsequently is resold, after being craftily qualified, for about a dollar.

The increased demand for certain favorite products of universal consumption holds out strong inducements to rascality, and, just as coffee is doctored with chicory and tea with willow, many other articles are subjected to base admixture and imitation. These processes, as applied to wines and spirits, are notorious, and possibly they conduce in some measure to temperance. Such a consolation can hardly apply to the adulteration of tea, which, besides being consumed by all classes and ages, is almost at the present day an absolute dietetic necessity. At least, it is hard to see how the drive and nervous wear and tear of modern life, particularly at great centres of activity, could be sustained in the absence of a sedative so universally depended upon. It is therefore satisfactory to know that we shall not always be so much at the mercy of trans-oceanic manufacture as we now are. The culture of the tea-plant is being energetically pushed at various points in this country, and the home supply in a few years more will be, no doubt, very large. Growers may have to rely, to a considerable extent, on Chinese labor; but this will have advantages as well as drawbacks, and the latter need not include the illicit consumption of willow.

The Problems of Republican Politics.

As we live under a government "of the people, by the people, for the people," it follows that just in proportion as the people perform their governing functions and duties promptly, regularly, and intelligently on the one hand, or neglect them on the other, will they enjoy good or suffer bad administration. Unfortunately, a great portion of the public is not only falling into a chronic habit of neglecting and shirking its political duties, but what is worse, it is falling into the habit of thinking, and may end in believing, the fatal error that the many evils which grow out of this very neglect are inherent in our republican system. It must be confessed that the experiment has hitherto been made under exceptionally favorable circumstances. We began in the enthusiasm of a religious and political persecution. We were isolated from national contact and rivalry. We had the stern and powerful traditions of simplicity, economy, and integrity. We were spared the jealousy and conflict of class distinctions. We had a wilderness wherein to build, and a continent whereon to spread. We had cheap land and rural populations. With the exception of the institution of negro slavery, we had equal rights and freedom of conscience. It is not easy to imagine the founding and growth of a nation under conditions which should more completely remove the usual sources of external danger and internal difficulty.

But these things do not exhaust the requirements of national growth. Take any nation under average and normal conditions, and from day to day it evolves new phases and relations of life, imperatively demanding changes and reforms in government. Could history have been truly written, it would show that more revolutions have originated in public necessity than in individual ambition. With the United States, this daily growth and expansion have reached a point where they will force new questions and problems of administration upon the public attention in a most unmistakable and unavoidable way. The average citizen, chasing the phantom of his brown-stone front and half a million in stocks and bonds, is quite indifferent as to whether we annex Sir Domingo, whether we ratify the Treaty of Washington, and even who may be next President. But if he ignores these questions there are others upon him nearer home. What does he think of Erie swindles, of Tammany rule, of gagging acts, of coal strikes? How does he like legislative corruption and factional usurpation?

There is urgent need of political study on the part of our thinkers, and of political action on the part of our people. The first is especially essential, since the day is nearly past when the liberty and property of the citizen can be safely trusted to men whose daily and nightly aspiration extends no farther than to reach the greatest skill in partisan intrigues and caucus manipulations. Gigantic combinations for political and commercial fraud confront us on every hand. They propose to seize the management of great corporations, the control of States, nay, the very destiny of the Republic itself is threatened. They will multiply with the marvelous increase of our population, and grow in strength with the growing importance of local interests. We are not yet at the end of this chapter of conspiracies for money, and for power. But few years will elapse before it may be possible for one man to control the revenues of a continuous line of railroad from New-York to San Francisco. Prompt political action by the masses is imperative; but intelligent political direction is equally essential. It is not enough to unearth the evil, to denounce it, even to vote it down in the excitement of a first chase. It will grow like the heads of a hydra, unless our legislators have the wisdom and patience to bind and disable it, from year to year, with constitutional restrictions, with statutory safeguards, and oppose to it the barricades of an unsullied Judiciary and an unbought Press.

MINOR TOPICS.

The plan of "manipulating" juries does not always fail. What the tone of public opinion may be if FOSTER escapes the fate which the law awards to murderers, there cannot be much difficulty in anticipating. But after the remarkable trial which we have witnessed, and Judge CARDOZO's charge, it would have been strange if the jury had rendered a verdict without hesitation. What everybody knows is this—a peaceable citizen was shamefully insulted in a street car, threatened with violence, and then deliberately killed with an iron bar. If this was not a cruel and cold-blooded murder, then all other men who have suffered for murder on the gallows suffered injustly. There are many circumstances in connection with this trial upon which it will be our duty to comment hereafter—but in the meantime we may quote the following remarks which appeared in that shrewd journal, the Springfield Republican, on May 18. They will be read with interest just now:

"The man who brutally murdered Mr. PUTNAM for the offense of trying to protect ladies from insult, will not be punished if certain eminent politicians can prevent it. It is certainly a serious circumstance that Mr. W. O. BARTLETT should have happened into the Court-room just at the moment the prisoner's counsel felt compelled, by the stab of his knife, to call the Court for an associate, and that Judge CARDOZO, who is an intimate friend of the politicians in question, should have at once pitched upon the new comer as the man to fill that position. With CARDOZO to preside, BARTLETT to defend, and a jury of doubters to pass upon his case, FOSTER's chance of escaping the hands of the Sheriff is of the brightest. But he and his powerful friends should not forget that it does not require the Sheriff to noose a rope, and that the lamp-post has been found before now to make a very fair substitute for the gallows."

Our merchants are indebted to Dr. BELL, one of the Quarantine Commissioners, for an exposure of the official malpractices connected with the Health Officer's Department. How far Dr. CARNOCHAN is personally responsible for the abuses that have been practiced in connection with his office, we have no means of knowing; but if, as has been stated, the blame lies at the door of his assistant, Mr. REID, the Doctor owes it to himself to remove the cause of complaint by substituting a more competent or more honest deputy. But, independent of the action of the present incumbent of the Health Office, the statements made by Commissioner BELL are valuable as showing the rottenness and corruption of the whole system of Quarantine under the laws as they now exist. There is no reason or justice in a system whereby the legitimate fees of the Health Officer may reach the sum of $20,000 per annum, and his actual fees $250,000 more. As the law now exists, the position of Health Officer of the port of New-York is more lucrative than that of any official in the United States, and the whole burden falls upon the commerce of the port which ought to be as unrestricted and as free from extortion as possible.

For the week ending May 20, the number of small-pox seizures amounted to fifty-five, being fourteen less than during the previous week, and five in excess of those for the week ending May 6. Other contagious diseases show a threatening upward movement, this being specially notable in the increase of typhoid cases from two to eleven, and those of typhus cases from none to four. The Board of Health has shown itself to be perfectly aware of the potential influence exerted by the condition of numerous undrained up-town lots. Yesterday the City Sanitary Inspector recommended that the water-course between Ninety-first and Ninety-third streets and Second and Third avenues be thoroughly drained by other means than sewers. If the powers granted by the bill lately passed at Albany only enable the Board, as in this instance, to "refer" the matter to the Department of Public Works, we are likely to have an unchecked abundance of malarial fevers during the Summer. It would be absurd to expect TWEED to give his charitable donation at Christmas were his Department to be administered in the public interest during the rest of the year. A few hundred victims of pestilence as a consequence of shameful neglect will not

A convention has been called to [illegible] Declaration Anniversary, Saturday, to meet at [illegible] Falls on July 4. A committee has not been [illegible] appointed in Canada as yet. The [illegible] was indirectly an issue in the late Nova Scotia [illegible] election, and to apparently losing [illegible] party opposed to annexation, while [illegible] sustained all the annexationists of the [illegible] Provincial Government. [illegible] Canada, the agitation is not so popular as it was [illegible] years ago. If this feeling has extended throughout Canada, the time for holding the Convention is inopportune. The Canadian advocates of annexation have also made another mistake. The Convention so called, will, if all the delegates attend, be so large as to be unwieldy. Two delegates from each Congressional district of the United States, and two from each Parliamentary district of the Dominion, will, if all send delegates, make a Convention considerably larger than our National Nominating Conventions. But as the interest in annexation on this side of the line is confined to a small circle, there is danger that the Convention will be so patriotic a failure as to extinguish, for the present, the hopes of its promoters.

In Kentucky the campaign has been opened on the part of the Republicans with great vigor. Gen. HARLAN, the Republican nominee for Governor, has already taken the stump, and will contribute his best efforts to command success. The Democracy are largely in the majority, and Kentucky is counted by them among the sure States. The suppression of the last Legislature, the evident fear of the Ku-klux, and its failure to adopt any of the measures recommended by the progressive wing of the party, dismayed many who had always acted with the Democracy, but it was resolved to await the action of the State Convention before breaking from the party. The State Convention was controlled by the same cowards as the Legislature, and unless the dissatisfied Democrats vote with the Republicans, they will not find a ticket in accordance with their advanced views. The Republican Convention met all questions of State and national policy squarely and adopted a platform broad enough for all desiring the welfare of their State to stand upon. The Republicans have entered on the work of redeeming Kentucky with a will, and though the task will require extraordinary exertions, they have faith to believe that they will succeed.

According to a cable telegram, the English metropolis has been found to contain over three and a quarter millions of people. This shows an increase of nearly half a million, or sixteen per cent, in ten years. The metropolitan district now contains one-ninth of the entire population of the United Kingdom, and of this large aggregation of human beings, every seventh man is in receipt of public charity. It was stated a few weeks ago in the House of Commons, that the annual cost of the relief given to the poor of London was $7,500,000, and that in ten years the cost had increased eighty-four per cent. That is to say, the cost of maintaining the class in receipt of public alms has increased sixty-eight per cent. faster than the growth of the population. A fact more significant of the highly morbid character of the growth of the English metropolis could hardly be looked for.

The cotton-growing States will, it is reported, produce this year a crop of reduced average. The season thus far has been cold and rainy, and therefore unpropitious. Much of the cotton land on the Mississippi, Red, and other rivers, on which the largest crops are produced, have been flooded nearly the whole season. A much smaller average has been planted, and the crop will, according to present indications, fall considerably short of that of 1870. The prospect would be very gloomy for the South, if the planters had not, as in former years, especially before the war, relied wholly on cotton. Now those with regard to farming are fortunately obtaining considerable influence in the South. Many planters have discovered that mixed farming yields more certain returns than dependence on one crop. This year, in many of the cotton States, the planters will raise corn and live stock sufficient to provide for the wants of themselves and their laborers. These they have heretofore purchased with the proceeds of their cotton crop. The yield of corn will, it is said, be very large—much the largest ever produced in the South. As this rate, cotton will soon come to be regarded in the States, which have heretofore depended solely on it, as the tobacco crop is in Virginia—not as a subsistence, but merely as a ready-money crop.

YACHTING.

The First Regatta of the Season—Fourth Season of the Manhattan Club.

The yachting season was opened, yesterday, with the Manhattan Yacht Club's fourth annual regatta. The day being particularly fine, although the wind was unfavorable for racing, a very large number of the Club members and their friends assembled on board the steam-yacht Red Jacket, which had been chartered for the occasion. The regatta which contested for prizes were divided into two classes:

First Class—Yawls: Commodore, SIMMONS; Sarah, Capt. MCCABE; Mystery, T. C. COOPER.

Second Class—Yawls: Sappho, JACOB VARIAN; Sappho 2, J. M. VARIAN; Sky-Jack, J. D. BRADBURN; Sea Cadet, ISLIP.

The courses for the first class was from the club-house foot of Ninety-second-street, North River, to Sands Point and return, a distance of thirty miles; for the second class, from club-house to Port Schuyler and return, twenty miles.

The signal for starting was given at 12M., and immediately all got ready. The wind at the time was very light, and what little there was was quite adverse, consequently getting away was a series of "tacks," in which much good manoeuvring was shown by the Mystery, the Sea Cadet, the Side-Jack, which three took the lead, the Sea being first. Off Whitestone, Long Island, the Wind died out, and the Sea made a great mistake by making a wide tack, which lost the lost ground that she had made afterward to recover. Off Hallett's Island, Sea led, with Mystery and Side-Jack close astern, the others being out of sight. Between that point and Port Schuyler, Side-Jack, all the time hugging the shore, crept up slowly and managed to obtain the lead. At this time the wind had almost entirely died out, and the Commodore and Sappho being becalmed, withdrew from the race. The others crept along, passing Port Schuyler in the following order: Side-Jack, Sea, Sappho 2, Sea Mystery and Sarah, the latter two very close. The first-class boats continued their race to Sands's Point, and had an exciting contest. The second-class returned to the home stake-boat, and when about half way there a good breeze sprang up, which bowled them along merrily. The order in which the boats came in was: Side-Jack, Sappho, Sea, Mystery and Sarah, the Jack and Mystery winning the prizes in their respective classes. The officers of the Club are: Commodore, S. M. SIMPSON; Vice-Commodore, J. M. CROKER; Rear-Commodore, S. A. VARIAN; Secretary, Mr. ISLIP; Treasurer, J. M. VARIAN. The Manhattan Club proposes another race shortly.

RELIGIOUS WORK.

Opening of the International Young Men's Christian Association.

Six Hundred Delegates Present—Address of Welcome—Prayers for Great Britain and the United States and for Mr. Colfax —Addresses—A Visit of the Indian Delegation— Other Conventions.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 24.—The first day's session of the Sixteenth Annual International Convention of Young Men's Christian Association has already proven a happy augury of the complete success of the Convention as a whole. To the surprise of everybody, nearly 600 delegates took seats promptly at the opening, at 10 A. M. They had been coming in all night, on every train on the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad brought in a large Western delegation at 1 A. M., who remained in the depot for an hour, while the Entertainment Committee was preparing their assignments. Three hundred more arrived on the New-York express, at 7½ A. M., which with thirteen car-loads was an hour late. Then, at 10 A. M., another installment of a hundred from the North and North-west, and at 1 P. M. still another, while the New-York day express, at 3 P. M., landed seven car-loads more. A very good representation from the South is also here, every State but three being represented, viz., Arkansas, Texas and Georgia; while all the Northern States are represented save Nevada and Oregon. New-England, of course pours out her wealth of earnest, Christian men. The Committee on Entertainment met the delegates at the depot, and at once assigned all who desired to the residences of citizens, who entertain them as guests during their stay. Thus far, of the total number who have arrived, they have assigned 400 to such homes. In addition to the delegates, a very large number of members of associations and association people, with many clergymen interested in this noble and powerful work have also arrived to enjoy the occasion and its precious influences, so that there are in Washington to-night scarcely less than twelve hundred Christian men and women, all engaged in pressing on the Christ-like work of lifting up humanity from the degradation of sin and pointing the way to eternal life. Your Christian readers will regard it as a most inspiring scene, and all must admire the power and effect of such a virtuous organization against the powers of darkness.

THE OPENING SCENE.

Nothing since the grand Peace Jubilee in Boston, when 10,000 voices were raised in magnificent volume in the tune of old "Coronation," has been grander than the scene to-day, when from 1,000 lungs, from deep bass to treble tenor, rolled up the volume of sound in the same inspiring hymn. The preparations by the Washington Association were complete in their character, and the stage looked enchanting with its wealth of fragrant flowers and sparkling fountains playing among the rose-leaves. Mrs. President GRANT, with happy appreciation of their wants, opened her conservatory to the Decoration Committee for all they wanted, while Gen. CAPRON, of the Agricultural Department, sent basketfuls of his floral gifts, and the Evergreen Gardens yielded their brilliant treasures in great profusion on the magical order of Senator MORRILL's Library Committee. The Convention was formally called to order by J. S. MACLEAN, President of the Fifteenth Convention. The Vice-Presidents of the last Convention were invited to take seats upon the platform. After singing the hymn "Coronation," the Scriptures were read by Rev. Dr. HOXIE; prayer was offered by Rev. Dr. BUTLER, Chaplain of the House of Representatives, the audience uniting with him at the close of the "Lord's Prayer." After singing the hymn "Stand up for Jesus," Rev. Dr. ROAKIN, of the First Congregational Church, led in prayer. A resolution was offered by F. H. SMITH that T. H. K. ENOS, of Indianapolis, be elected temporary Secretary of this Convention, and Mr. ENOS took his place upon the platform. The President then welcomed the delegates to the Convention as follows:

MY BRETHREN: I, as President of this Convention, welcome you here to this City of Washington and to this meeting of the Convention. Many of us have been here before, and experienced the blessedness and joy of meeting and communing with each other on the great work which is now in view. I know for my own part, that often when troubled with the cares of business life at home, I remember the dear ones I have met from year to year at these Conventions, and my heart thrills with joy that, setting aside those cares, I can come here to meet with them, and feel encouraged and blessed, and I know that many hundreds here have just the same feelings and desires. Many of you, however, are here for the first time, and you have come here desiring to know how we do this work, and desiring to be strengthened and helped yourselves. I trust that our meeting will be so filled with the spirit of God and by our own careful exertions that these next three days of home rejoicing, and be greatly benefitted and blessed by this association, and that they shall pronounce our work a great success. God unites upon it, angels assist in it, men and women everywhere believe in its heavenly mission and wish it God-speed. How many mothers in these States and in all parts of these lands rejoice today in the return of a prodigal son, through the instrumentality of these associations, in the joy and peace of seeing them clothed and in their right mind! How many sisters, how many wives who have learned to bless God for the Young Men's Christian Association, for young men who have been snatched from dissipation and crime by its influence! Therefore we can claim the promise of God that He will exceedingly bless us and strengthen us for the fight. Why is this work a success? Is it because so much as possible we carry out the injunction and command of our blessed Saviour which He gave as a new commandment, we are to love one another and to love the Lord Jesus Christ and our neighbor as ourselves. This has been the basis of our success, and the increase stone of our work. Let us not be ashamed of Jesus. Whose we are be, let us live for Christ and work for Him. It is a singular coincidence with reference to this Convention, you will pardon me for mentioning it, that it is our Queen's Birth-day, [Applause long continued.] the very natal day on which I have been placed here to call you to order in the Capital of this great country, in the City of Washington today, and this just following after the High Commission, which has finished its work and handed in a treaty which I trust will be ratified by both countries. [Great applause.] I rejoice to know that your President, Gen. GRANT, has used all his power to further this great treaty and to assist in bringing it to a conclusion, and that your Senate is likely soon to ratify it. There is not in this mission connection with our Association, but there is this about it, that we as young men, representing different countries, coming here to these countries, and we are drawing them together, making each other feel that there is a tie which is above any nationality. [Applause.]

COMMITTEE ON CREDENTIALS.

A committee of seven, on credentials, was then appointed; also a committee of one from each State and Territory on permanent organization. This last Committee gives a good idea of the extended representation present, and is as follows: Henry J. Cowles, Madison, Wis.; David Bentley, Montreal; Thomas J. Wilkie, Toronto, Ontario; James K. Healy, Truro, N. S.; A. B. Bottsford, St. Johns, N. B.; Charles Palmer, Charlottetown, Prince Edwards Island; A. J. Chase, Portland, Me.; Hiram Smart, Plaistow, N. H.; Mr. Stevens, Rutland, Vt.; George E. Lovejoy, Lowell, Mass.; E. H. Holden, Providence, Rhode Island; D. Carr, Bridgeport, Conn.; John J. Platt, Poughkeepsie, N. Y.; D. C. English, New-Brunswick, N. J.; Geo. Mears, Philadelphia, Penn.; J. G. Berger, Baltimore, Md.; H. Thane Miller, Cincinnati, Ohio; William Woolton, Indianapolis, Ind.; D. L. Falte, Springfield, Ill.; E. S. Goodman, Grand Rapids, Mich.; T. McClary, Red Wing, Minn.; John E. Chelphin, Nebraska; J. H. Smith, Washington; H. W. Beadle, Alexandria, Va.; William H. Irwin, Wheeling, West Va.; S. J. Skinner, Edenton, N. C.; E. F. Stokes, Greenville, S. C.; C. F. Mowley, Jacksonville, Fla.; H. B. Lindsay, Covington, Ky.; L. A. Rudzell, Shelbyville, Tenn.; Allan R. Foot, St. Louis, Mo.; R. H. Brown, New-Orleans, La.; J. S. Diehl, San Francisco, Cal. A Committee on Temporary Business was then appointed, consisting of seven members, with M. B. BARNARD, of Indianapolis, as Chairman. Mr. GEO. H. STUART, of Philadelphia, offered the following:

Resolved, That the members of the Press, the clergymen of Washington and all other clergymen present, and also all members of associations not regularly accredited as delegates, be constituted as corresponding members of this Convention which was agreed to.

DEVOTIONAL EXERCISES.

Mr. E. R. MCBURNEY, of New-York, moved that leave be granted to the Committee to retire, and that until the Committee on Permanent Organization is ready to report that the time of the Convention be occupied in devotional exercises, which was agreed to. Announcement of the death of J. R. OSGOOD, a member of the Indianapolis Association, communicated in a telegram from Indianapolis was made by the Secretary. GEO. H. STUART, of Philadelphia, suggested that Brother THANE MILLER offer prayer in behalf of the two nations and their heads, and also in behalf of the Vice-President, whom he learned was still at the Capitol indisposed. In offering prayer Brother MILLER thanked God for the loving-kindness and care which had followed the two nations since their existence. He prayed that forever, as long as the two nations shall exist, nothing but love and harmony and peace may prevail between them. [Voices—Amen.] That they may love each other as brothers indeed, and seek only, in all their transactions with each other, to act as brothers indeed, and to do righteousness, and to do that which shall honor God and bring salvation to the nations. He thanked God for the example that that godly woman, the Queen, had set in her Christian life, and prayed that its influence might be extended, that she might experience rich spiritual blessings, and finally receive an eternal reward. The Vice-President of the United States were fervently prayed for, that they might be sanctified and guided in their temporal and spiritual relations. Vice-President COLFAX, as the friend of the Associations, was especially remembered in Mr MILLER'S prayer. The manner of this gentleman, well known to all old Association people, attracted new and increased admiration to-day. He is nearly blind, yes has such a complete command of all his faculties that he has for three years in succession presided over the annual Conventions with such remarkable grace, efficiency, spirit and success that he has narrowly escaped the unanimity of every succeeding Convention. In address and in prayer his countenance is as bright with that beautiful light which can only come from a heart possessing that peace which passeth all understanding. Mayor SHERRY and Senator WILSON were then invited to the platform, the remainder of the time, until 12 o'clock, was occupied in devotional exercises, prayers being offered and exhortations made by Gen. HOWARD, Rev. Mr. BUTLER, of Washington, and several delegates. The Business Committee then presented the following report and recommendation:

BUSINESS.

That the Convention hold one continuous session to-day, adjourning at 12 P. M.; that a recess be taken from 12½ to 1 o'clock, to be followed by a devotional meeting of fifteen minutes; at 1¼ reports of the Executive Committee and their agents to be read, followed by remarks from the corresponding members of the States and Territories in which they reside; that the arrangement of the order of exercises for the Convention evening meeting be adopted; the hour for assembling to-morrow be at 9 o'clock, the first half hour to be spent in devotional exercises; that the last fifteen minutes before recess today be occupied by Brother GEORGE A. HALL in an account of the religious interest of this city.

PERMANENT ORGANIZATION.

The Committee on Permanent Organization then presented the following nominations: For President, John Wanamaker, Philadelphia, Penn., President of the Philadelphia Young Men's Christian Association. For Vice-Presidents, R. R. McBurney, of New-York; S. J. Skinner, Edenton, N. C.; Charles Callender, Newark, N. J.; Noah Brooks, San Francisco, Cal.; T. James Clarkson, Montreal; M. S. Crosby, Grand Rapids, Mich.; J. H. Kendrick, Providence, R. I.; M. E. Barnard, Indianapolis, Ind.; Clinton Lloyd, Washington City; C. B. Fisk, St. Louis, Mo.; Charles Palmer, Prince Edwards Island; Wm. B. Simpson, Wheeling, West Va. For Secretaries, T. H. K. Enos, Indianapolis, Ind.; William H. Hobbs, Portland, Me.; H. J. Cowles, Madison, Wis. On motion the vote for the election of President was taken by rising, and JOHN WANAMAKER was unanimously elected amid cheers. The Vice-Presidents and Vice-Presidents elect were elected in the same manner. On motion of Brother STUART, a committee of two, consisting of Brothers J. S. MACLEAN, of Halifax, and H. THANE MILLER, of Cincinnati, the two last Presidents, be appointed to conduct the President to the chair. On taking the Chair the President spoke as follows:

PRESIDENT'S ADDRESS.

I am deeply sensible of the high honor that you have bestowed upon me. I have no words of utterance. There are some times that we cannot speak out even to each other, but can only whisper what my heart feels in the ear of Him whom we love best, and thank Him for it, and ask Him to bless you all. I never felt so weak in my life. I never shrank from anything as much as I do to take this place today. But if Christ wants me, I am ready to answer to his bidding. I ask you to do much for the officers you have elected today. I ask you to keep in mind the grand purpose for which we have come. As I passed along the streets this morning, I thought of the last time that I was in Washington, nearly four years ago, when I and with many others were walking along these streets keeping step to the music of the band, and hastening to the Capitol to pay our homage to the grand soldier, the nation's President; but I rejoice far more today that we have come marching with the songs of Zion, under the banner of the Cross, to gather around the King of Kings, and in the song that we have sung, to crown Jesus "Lord of all." [Applause.] Dear brethren, keep that in view. It is for the glory of Christ that we have come; it is to get nearer to the Cross. Let the song rise then often from our hearts, "Nearer, my God, to Thee." A little nearer to me of our weakness as I sat there thinking of the vast interests that centre in this Convention. These beautiful flowers filled my eye, and then I caught that little delicate vine that held them there, and I thought that the vine that reaches up to the loving hand of God in answer to prayer would send to us beautiful gifts of His favor and His grace. Let us remember this today. Dear brethren, let us one and all forget ourselves and see only Jesus. One word more. Some one said that we are men of mark. Let it be felt in Washington that we have made our mark. Reference has been made to the birthday of the Queen; God bless her. [Applause.] May many birthdays be still given to her. But let it be said by some white the brethren of this Convention are met in Washington, let it be said by some, "I have been born again; I rejoice in finding Christ as my Saviour." Let us one and all make a grand array with Christ to work for Him, take this land for Him and labor for Him, as we have never done in those days we have passed. Will you join, dear brethren, in singing that familiar hymn, "Oh, for a closer walk with God," and then after the last verse, which is a consecration hymn, be led in prayer by this dear, blessed man from whom we have learned so much, the retiring President. Let him take us to the Throne of Grace, asking for God's spirit upon us while we stay here.

Mr. MACLEAN then offered a fervent prayer. The First Secretary, Mr. ENOS, offered his resignation, which was accepted, and JOHN J. PLATT, of Poughkeepsie, New-York, elected in his stead.

WORK IN WASHINGTON.

Announcement was made of the presence of R. A. HAZZARD, Esq., representing the Association of London, England, and JOHN FERNOLD, Esq., of the Leeds, England, Association. They were invited to the platform, the audience rising to welcome them. Rev. GEORGE A. HALL, General Secretary of the Washington Association, said a most efficient worker was invited to make a few remarks in regard to the work which had been done in Washington preceding the Convention. Mr. HALL said: "I would only say that the Master is here in a very wonderful manner. Jesus of Nazareth is passing through our city, and is speaking to the children of men very loudly. We have had a most delightful season during these ten days that have passed. We have only to ask that you pray for an answer to the prayer or semi-prophecy of one our city pastors made the other day when he stated that it was somewhat singular that this ten days' meeting, though appointed without reference to such a coincidence, happened to be on the very days when some of the churches were celebrating the ten days before Pentecost. His prayer was, that as the coming Sabbath will be a day for the celebration of Pentecost, that everybody might pray that it might, indeed, be a Pentecost for the city and the nation represented here. Mr. HALL then referred to the social reception to be held in the evening, at the Congregational church. They would be told then about these meetings. They would be told how burdened souls had risen and said, "Pray for us." How stricken and wounded souls had been pointed to the Savior.

LUNCH.

Announcement was then made that a lunch of sandwiches and lemonade would be furnished gratuitous to the delegates in the building adjoining the Association, on D-street, with the compliments of the Washington Association. The Convention then took a recess of half an hour. After recess fifteen minutes were spent in devotional exercises, led by Mr. ROWLAND, of Boston. EDGAR A. HUTCHINS, Esq., of New-York, then read a report of the Executive Committee, a synopsis of which appeared in today's TIMES.

A VISIT FROM THE INDIANS.

Pending this VINCENT COLLYER, Esq., sent word to Mr. GEO. H. STEWART that the Arapahoe and Cheyenne chiefs, now visiting the city, had, after seeing a great deal of the physical power of the Government in a visit to the Navy-yard, expressed a desire to see more evidences of its moral power by a visit to the chamber of the men of peace. Word was at once sent that they would be cordially received, and they soon arrived, and were placed on the stage, giving rise to much curiosity and gratification in the audience. Hon. COLUMBUS DELANO, Secretary of the Interior, was then introduced, and spoke as follows:

MR. PRESIDENT AND GENTLEMEN OF THIS CONVENTION: It is with feelings of no ordinary emotion that I appear before you today. I have within me a sentiment that this occasion is ordered by Providence, that His hand is in it, that His power is over it, as I believe it to be in more of the events of life than generally is acknowledged. [Applause.] But I find myself today in the presence of a body of men who acknowledge, as I believe, the duty of fulfilling and executing the last great testament of the Saviour of mankind, "Go into the world and preach my Gospel to all men." [Applause.] And it so happens under his administration and guidance and direction, that this body of men, actuated by this sentiment, meet here today; those who have never heard the Gospel. It seems a fit occasion to return to Him thanks for His mercies, and to renew within ourselves a pledge of the obligation that rests upon us do execute the trust and duty that he has devolved upon us. I have come, gentlemen, to say this much, and for me to add to it that while you have been here to discharge this great duty, you happened, if that is a proper word to use, to meet the representatives of certain tribes of Indians who are uncivilized, and who have been enemies of the Government and of the people, but whom I know today desire to bow to the authority of the United States and to learn the obligations of Christianity. [Applause.] Those persons to whom I refer represent three great nations or tribes of Indians. The Arapahoes, the Cheyennes and the Wichitas. I have been with them several days. I have conversed with them. They have avowed themselves desirous of abandoning their present modes of life, and no longer by the hunt, as they call it, and to learn the arts of civilization, and to become acquainted with the duties of civilized life, and to know, also, the obligations of Christianity and benevolence. I am satisfied that that which they have seen of the power and of the influence of civilization here has impressed them profoundly. That is why they left their native fields and prairies in doubt in regard to the sentiments of the people toward them, this doubt has been removed. That they feel convinced that these sentiments of humanity which we have toward them are real, and that they desire to respond to these sentiments and be at peace with our people. I do not wish now, gentlemen, to prolong these remarks. These three nations to which I have adverted are here represented, some by more and some by less of the members of their nations. They will be introduced to you severally by Mr. COLLYER, and he will notify you as he introduces them to which nation they belong; and if you desire to hear their sentiments from their own lips, you can hear it through their interpreters. [Applause.] I only mention to you, gentlemen, that one of the nations (the Arapahoes) is here represented by its principal chief, LITTLE RAVEN, and by their principal chief warrior, POWDER FACE. Strange names to us, but to them as significant and as proper as any we can find applied to ourselves. This man, LITTLE RAVEN, as you will see when he comes before you, is a man of native strength, and you will feel that the same God that breathed into you the breath of life, gave him his existence. [Applause.] You will see that he is a man of power, endowed by nature with intellect, and all that he wants, in order to build houses and railroads, and steam-boats and schools, is to know the Lord and his Redeemer. [Applause.] What work can you be engaged in more noble directly in the fulfillment of the great duties of Christianity than in communing with these men, and knowing more of them and making them know more of you than either of you have known of each other before. And now, gentlemen, with these remarks I shall ask Mr. COLLYER to introduce these gentlemen, and if you desire you can converse with them through their interpreter. [Applause.]

THE TALK OF THE INDIANS.

Gen. HOWARD then led in prayer, and the delegates sang "From Greenland's Icy Mountains," when the "pow-wow" began. Mr. COLLYER, Secretary of the Indian Commissioners, introduced LITTLE RAVEN, of the Arrapahoes, and he, through an interpreter, made a few remarks to the effect that he had traveled a great distance, and now had great confidence in the power of the white man, and knew his power to be much greater than those he had before started. He was satisfied, after seeing the great works of the white man, that the Great Spirit is helping them, and he hoped that the Great Spirit of the white man would help the red men and aid them.

BUFFALO GOOD, of the Wachitas, was next introduced, and, through his interpreter, said: This country was given to the Indian, and when white man came, Indian helped him; now white man get rich and Indian poor. He didn't know how this was, unless it was from the better medicine of the white man, and he now wanted to get the same medicine. Then the Great Spirit had given the white man better medicine than he gave the Indians. That is the only way he can account for the way they are living now. He says he would like to have the Great Spirit give them the same medicine as the white men. He speaks for the Chickasaws, the Cherokees and his brother men. His friend, Mr COLLYER, told him to come here today and he would see the young men of the nation, and these are the men he wants to talk to. So far he has talked to the men who have governed the nation, and they have paid no attention to it; but now he is talking to men who are going to govern the nation, and he is in hopes that now—— [The audience had anticipated the conclusion of the sentence, and immense applause and loud laughter greeted this exhibition of savage wit.

LITTLE ROBE and others declined to speak. Mr. COLLYER said that these Indians had had engagement at the Navy-yard today; but when they had this meeting explained to them, they said they would come here, for they wished to learn, and when they returned to their homes they wished the Government to aid them in building school-houses, &c.

Mr. STUART was, on motion of Gen. HOWARD, requested to convey the sentiments of the Convention to the visitors, and Mr. STUART addressed them through the interpreters, saying there were two pictures, one representing forty millions of white people, and the other a people who had been wronged. Justice had been too slow in coming to their side. These Great Father before his inauguration had said he wanted to do justice to the Indian, and justice should be written on his banners. The members of the Convention would pray for these men on their return, and he hoped that they may see them again when not so far distant. Such Conventions there would be delegations of Arapahoes, Cheyennes, &c., and Little Ravens in the chair. [Applause.]

BUSINESS RESUMED.

Mr. MCBURNEY, who had been elected First Vice-President, declined, and Mr. L. P. ROWLAND, of Boston, was chosen in his stead. The Convention then adjourned for the day. Among the objects for which prayer was offered in the Convention today were the Chief of Paris, those of the burning of the palaces having been received during the session. Immediately after adjournment the New-England delegation went into caucus for the purpose of adopting measures to secure the Convention next year at Lowell. There is said to be a strong opposition to Cleveland, which city competes strongly for the honor, with many advantages of centrality, accessibility and vigorous growth.

EVENING EXERCISES.

Open-air exercises were conducted in the evening at 7 o'clock, at the corner of Pennsylvania-avenue and Ninth-street, presided over by Mr. K. A. HURNELL, and on the Patent-office steps, by Mr. G. A. HALL, which meetings were well attended and interesting remarks delivered. At 8 o'clock Mr. BURNELL opened a meeting in Calvary Baptist Church, which continued for an hour and drew together many of the delegates and their friends. The welcome reception at the Congregational Church proved to be a most interesting affair. The church was densely crowded and standing room was at a premium, although the building will seat 3,000 people. Among those on the platform were President GRANT, Secretary DELANO, Gen. O. O. HOWARD, and others. Mr. F. H. SMITH, President of the Washington Association, presided. The exercises were commenced by singing the hymn, "All Hail the Power of Jesus' Name," which was followed by reading a portion of the Scriptures, by Rev. Dr. BYRON SUNDERLAND, D. D., after which prayer was offered by Rev. J. G. MCCAULEY, D. D. President GRANT was then introduced and received with tumultuous applause. He said:

The young gentlemen of the Christian Association will be very much disappointed if they expect any address from me. If there ever was an occasion, however, upon which I should deliver an address, I don't know any one that would be more likely to inspire it than when I see before me so many honest faces, and when I see before me so many whom I believe are engaged in a work in which they are sincere, and which I fully believe is for the general good. All I can say further is, that I hope that your meeting here will be attended with great good and great national blessings. [Applause.]

Gov. HENRY D. COOKE, who waste have welcomed the delegates on behalf of the District Government, was prevented from so doing by indisposition. Secretary DELANO acted as his substitute, and made a brief but most effective address, paying only such a tribute to the Christian cause as an earnest believer can pay. Mr. WILLIAM STOCKNEY, President of the Legislative Council, then delivered an address of welcome on behalf of the citizens. This address was followed by singing "One More Year's Work for Jesus." After this, Messrs. GEO. H. STUART, of Philadelphia, and H. T. MILLER, of Cincinnati, responded in behalf of the Association for the hospitable reception that had been accorded the delegates. They were followed with brief remarks by Mr. JOHN WANNAMAKER and J. S. MACLEAN, of Canada. Mr. SMITH announced that the President had tendered them a reception this evening, and Gov. COOKE had proffered the use of steamers to convey them to Mount Vernon. After singing the hymn "God Save our Gracious Queen," the exercises were concluded, and the delegates moved about the church, exchanging congratulations and indulging in social conversation, until quite a late hour. The Marine Band was present, and by its superb music lent an additional charm to the occasion, which was greatly enjoyed by all.

A Reception to the Delegation—An Interesting Scene.

WASHINGTON, May 24.—A reception was given by the Washington Society to-night to the delegates to the International Convention of Young Men's Christian Associations at the Congregational Church. The edifice was crowded to suffocation by a dense throng of ladies and gentlemen. The meeting was presided over by Mr. F. H. SMITH, the President of the Washington Association. On the stand were President GRANT, Secretary Delano, Gen. O. O. Howard, Mr. John H. Stuart, of Philadelphia, Mr. H. Thane Miller, of Cincinnati, Mr. Wannamaker, President of the Convention, Mrs. Dr. McCauley, Byron L. Underhead, Wildius Stickney, Esq., President of the Territorial Council, Judge McLean, of Halifax, and delegates from the Young Men's Christian Associations of London and Leeds, England. The exercises were of a most interesting character. Addresses of welcome to the delegates were made by Rev. F. E. SMITH, by Secretary DELANO, in behalf of Gov. COOK, who was unable to be present, and by WM. STICKNEY, Esq., which were replete with expressions of Christian feeling and hospitality. Responses were made to the addresses of welcome on behalf of the delegates by Messrs. GEO. H. STUART, W. THANE MILLER, and JOHN WANAMAKER. The speech-making was interspersed by the singing of familiar hymns, in which the entire audience joined, having a very happy effect. In compliment to the English delegates as visitors, and in response to the announcement previously made that this was the natal day of the Queen of England, the entire audience joined heartily, at the close of the speech-making, in singing the great National hymn of England, "God Save Our Gracious Queen," the effect of which was to bring out brief and very happily-delivered expressions of thanks by Judge MCLEAN and Rev. Dr. DOUGLAS of Montreal. Judge MCLEAN said that he only wished his most gracious sovereign could have been present to hear with what heartfelt voice that audience had united in singing the great national anthem of his country. Mr. DOUGLAS concurred in offering his thanks for the magnificent spirit in which the audience had joined in giving utterance to the spirit of that hymn. He said that it was gratifying to him to see his brethren present, and that he felt that it was the kind of intercourse between the Christian people of the two nations that was marking the inauguration of a grand era of cordiality, good soul, fraternity and brotherly love between the Christian people of the two great Protestant nations of the world, and which would make its advent on all mankind, and have an effect for good until the remotest ages of the world.

The general exercises of welcome being concluded, the audience passed an hour in the body of the church and adjacent parlors and library, renewing old and making new acquaintances, and in general social intercourse and mutual enjoyment.

RELIGIOUS ANNIVERSARIES.

The Presbyterian Assembly—Proceedings Preliminary to Organization.

CHICAGO, Ill., May 24.—The initial half hour was devoted to singing and prayer. On motion, the Special Committee of the Memorial Fund Committee Report was increased to fifteen, as follows: Jas. Ellis, D. D., Geo. L. Prentiss, D. D., Elijah R. Cronn, D. D; Samuel Wilson, D. D.; Revs. S. A. Noble, Chas. A. Dickey, Sam. T. Carter, Jno. Edwards; Elders Hon. Jas. Allison, Hon. S. J. R. McMillan, Hon. Wm. P. Lynde, O. R. Kingsbury, D. S. Morrison, W. S. Waller, John G. Barrell. The consideration of the question whether the present volume of psalms in use in the churches shall be continued, or a new book prepared, elicited considerable discussion without reaching a conclusion.

The following trustees were elected for three years: Rev. M. Shepherd, Rev. V. T. Eva, and Rev. Alex. Reed, D. D., vice A. Barnes, deceased. The following were elected members of the Board of Publication: Rev. R. M. Patterson, D. D.; Rev. Dr. Hodge, Rev. Geo. W. Musgrave, D. D.; Rev. W. Allen, John Sibley, Esq.; James Baker, Esq.; Rev. W. S. Eva and Rev. Mr. Crowell. The report of the Home Mission Committee was read. It repeats and emphasizes the statements and recommendations of the Board's report, which reports the expenses at the uniform rate of $25,000 to $30,000 per month. In October last, the Board was so burdened with debt it was compelled to give notice to the churches and missionaries that no more demands on the treasury could be paid until it was replenished. The missionary reports of both branches of the Church made last year, contained 1,145 names; the present report contains 1,238. The balance in the treasury of the Board of Missions at the close of the last fiscal year was $45,037 59, of which $30,000 was transferred to New-York on the 15th of July. The income of the Board of Missions is $9,194 19; aggregate, $74,231 78. The year closed with a balance of only $2,026 81.

Receipts last year from all sources, $300,899 60; this year, $281,945 82. But the expenses this year were $282,944 23, which is $70,998 41 in excess of the receipts. The churches and individuals have contributed this year $230,194 92; last year, $288,507 67. But while the Board and Committee received last year $56,713 02 in legacies, the receipts from that source this year were only $21,760 90. The missionaries have performed an aggregate of 965 years of service and preached the Gospel statedly in not less than 2,000 places. The total additions to the churches were 21,017, and 240 Sabbath-schools were organized. During the year, 156 church edifices were built, and 168 repaired or enlarged. The church debts canceled amount to $238,677, and the contributions to the Memorial Fund were $339,410. Rev. H. KENDALL, D. D., and Rev. CYRUS DICKSON, D. D., made addresses, urging the Assembly to provide more funds. Unless help was given from the Memorial Fund or other source, the Board would be in debt to the missionaries not less than $100,000 by November next.

Western Baptist Educational Convention.

CHICAGO, May 24.—The Western Baptist Educational Convention met this morning in discussion it was stated that the twenty-one colleges in Illinois furnished an average of but eleven graduates. Fourteen colleges furnished the ministry only eleven graduates last year.

The Presbyterian Assembly in Chicago.

CHICAGO, May 24.—In the afternoon session delegates to corresponding bodies were appointed. The Assembly then adjourned until Friday morning.

The Presbyterian Synod—Sixth Day's Proceedings.

PHILADELPHIA, May 24.—Today was the sixth day's proceedings of the Reformed Presbyterian Synod. The subject for discussion was, "Family Prayer," which was discussed by Dr. CLARKE, Dr. WILSON and other members of the Synod. The reports of the Boards of Foreign and Domestic Missions were then taken up, but neither Committee was ready, so a recess of forty minutes was taken to enable the Committees to prepare their reports. After the recess the Boards said that they had not had sufficient time to report at the afternoon session. The resolution of Dr. STEELE concerning home missions, which was under discussion at the hour of adjournment yesterday afternoon, was again taken up and discussed and was adopted. The methods necessary to raise the funds were then discussed. A resolution referring the matter to the Board of Home Missions was offered, but not approved. A motion that a special Committee of seven be appointed to take charge of the fund was agreed to.

At the evening session, Rev. JAS. MOFFAT was chosen delegate to the Synod now in session at Pittsburg. Rev. Dr. WILSON presented his report as delegate to the Convention of the Anti-Secret Society, held last June, at Cincinnati. He read resolutions passed at the meeting declaring membership in secret societies a proper cause for church discipline. The report was accepted. The Synod decided to meet in Brooklyn at Rev. Mr. WOODSIDE'S church, on the third Wednesday of May, 1872. After transacting routine business and going through the usual religious exercises the Synod adjourned sine die.

The Zion M. E. Church Conference—The Assignments.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., May 24.—In the Conference of the Zion A. M. E. Church, today, a vote of censure was passed upon Rev. WILLIAM F. BUTLER for talking disrespectfully to the Bishop. The following list of appointments was read: Newark, N. J., J. L. H. SWEARES; Newburg, GABRIEL RICE; Poughkeepsie, WILLIAM B. DECKER; Troy, to be supplied; Zion Church, New-York City, JACOB THOMAS; Kingston, J. S. PAY, Dr. THOMPSON, overnight; Tarrytown, Sing Sing and Peekskill, J. S. A new star has just burst forth upon the lyric firmament of Europe, and is now shining there with acknowledged splendor. She is Mlle. MARIMON, and her great success has been in Amina. In the sweet and tender heroine of "La Sonnambula" this lady is declared to rival any previous singer. Her vocalization is pronounced "a new and original creation." She has been surpassed in energy, says one critic, by MARIMON and VIARDOT; in finesse by JENNY LIND; in charm of manner by ALBONI, but Mlle. MARIMON has an irresistible hold in the quality of her voice, in her powers of expression and in her executive skill, which is not short of marvelous. She has, we may conclude, what the French call la note harmonique, and this, which Mrs. WOOD possessed to perfection, and without which it is simply impossible to give due effect to Amina, has been, from a comparison of accounts, the prime creator of the new artist's triumphs.

Now, apart from congratulation on the rise of a fresh and needed luminary, we are led to refer to the matter by an obvious analogy. The Bride of Lammermoor requires this sympathetic "voice of tears" no less than does Amina. The pathos of the novel is the pathos of the opera—the heart and soul of the interest in both. Unfortunately, Mme. CAROLINA VIARDI, the representative of the part at the Academy last night, is ill provided with capacity to depict this emotion. We know how difficult it is to realize the ideal of Lucy Ashton, and that we do not look for. But some faint approach to such an ide

BOARD OF HEALTH.

Movements of Contagious Diseases—Interesting Facts Concerning Small-Pox.

At the meeting of the Board of Health yesterday, at which President BOWDITCH presided, suits were ordered to be commenced in six cases of violation of the tenement-house law; thirty-two cases of non-compliance with the orders of the Board, and in three cases of violation of the Sanitary Code. In several cases there was proof of compliance before service, and the orders heretofore entered for the commencement of suits were rescinded. The Sanitary Committee recommended that the fat-boiling and other nuisances at Nos. 28 and 30 Abattoir-place be discontinued, and an order to that effect was entered. Upon report of the Committee on Law and Ordinances, the Board refused to change or extend the limits prescribed by section No. 186, wherein slaughtering may be carried on. It is declared that the present area is ample for the business, and to permit it to become established in the heart of the City would be dangerous to the public health.

Dr. MORRIS reported the following comparative statement of contagious diseases for the two weeks ending May 20:

Week ending May 13: Fevers—Typhus, 0; typhoid, 2; relapsing, 1; scarlet, 10; small-pox, 49; measles, 35; diphtheria, 5.

Week ending May 20: Fevers—Typhus, 4; typhoid, 11, relapsing, 0; scarlet, 7; small-pox, 45; measles, 32; diphtheria, 11.

Dr. MORRIS also reported that, during the week ending May 20 it was the vaccinating corps have visited 2,288 families, and vaccinated 1,367 persons therein. They have also vaccinated 1,367 persons therein. They have also vaccinated 1,351 persons at the schools. The total vaccinations for the week were 2,180. Of these 619 were primary, and 4,561 secondary. The average daily census of small-pox patients at the Hospital for the week was 160. The number of patients in Hospital today is 131. The Bureau of Records reports the total number of deaths by small-pox for the corresponding week at 21, of which 19 occurred at the Hospital.

Dr. RUSSELL, Register of Records, reported on the mortality of the week that the fatal cases of small-pox diminished from 26 to 21, and those of scarlatina from 16 to 14. Five deaths were recorded to measles in each of the past two weeks. The mortality from this source has been gradually declining within two months, and is now much below the average. Typhus fever occasioned no deaths in the past week, and typhoid fever but 3. Puerperal fever destroyed 1 bowel and erysipelas 5. The latter disease, although not apt to be prevalent in the Spring, has recently become somewhat prominent as a cause of death, among infants more especially. Four out of the 5 fatal cases herein reported occurred among children of less than six months of age, and out of 42 deaths recorded within five months, 30 have been those of infants. The affection has not been confined to any particular locality. The mortality from phthisis pulmonalis, and the local respiratory diseases diminished by 3 and 12 deaths respectively. While small-pox in New-York is fluctuating with a tendency to decline, in London it has been manifesting renewed activity, its fatal cases during the week ending May 6, having reached 288, the highest weekly number attained in the present epidemic, and almost three times as great as the largest number returned in any week of the several outbreaks between 1840 and 1871. During the weeks mentioned, it produced 55 deaths in Liverpool, 23 in Southampton, and 16 in Newcastle-on-Tyne, the other large cities of the United Kingdom being almost exempt from it. Its persistency in London and Liverpool is remarkable for this season of the year, very prevalent in Brussels, whose, during the week ending April 29, it caused forty deaths. We are apprised by the resumption of Dr. ZUELZER's returns from Berlin, so long interrupted by the war, that Berlin also has been suffering from the ravages of small-pox, which, during the week ending the 4th inst., occasioned 96 deaths out of a total of 633, in a population of about 800,000.

The Reported Retirement of Collector Murphy.

The attaches of the Custom-house were considerably exercised, yesterday, over the report, which appeared to be telegraphed from Washington, to the effect that Collector MURPHY had resigned, and that Gen. CHESTER D. ARTHUR would be nominated in his place. This statement, taken in connection with others which have recently appeared in the telegraphic columns of some of the papers, led those who are accustomed to "put this and that together" when examining rumors, to conclude that there was something in it. The Collector, who ought to know whether the statement is true or false, could, in answer to many questions that he dined with the President yesterday, and that the first he (Mr. MURPHY) knew of his removal was on his arrival at the Fifth-avenue Hotel, when he learned that the report was in circulation.

The Committee of Bonded Warehousemen, who went to Washington on the purpose of remonstrating with the Secretary of the Treasury against the compulsory use of the new seal padlock, telegraphed to this City, yesterday, to the effect that they had succeeded in their mission.

REAL ESTATE TRANSACTIONS.

At the Exchange, yesterday, (May 24,) one of the most important transactions of the season was consummated, in the sale of the Florence Hotel property by MULLER, WILKINS & Co. Sold for $215,025 to Mr. C. C. HASTINGS. The real estate disposed of is located on the extreme City limits, at McComb's Dam Bridge, comprising 150 City lots, lying respectively on Seventh-avenue, McComb's Dam road, One Hundred and Fifty-first, One Hundred and Fifty-second, One Hundred and Fifty-third and One Hundred and Fifty-fourth streets, also possessing a valuable water front on the Harlem River. The fronts of the property are as follows: On the road, 1,100 feet; on east side of Seventh-avenue, 900 feet; on One Hundred and Fifty-first-street, 1,185 feet, and on the river, 1,230 feet. The sale yesterday was one in partition, by order of the executor of DANIEL DEVELIN, deceased, the owner of a one-third interest, the other two-thirds being owned by Messrs. JOHN E. DEVELIN and JAMES FLOURNOY. By the terms of the late Mr. DEVELIN's will it was directed that all the real estate owned by him should be sold at public auction, and hence the sale. The attendance at the Exchange pending the proceeding was large, and a decided interest was manifested. In opening the sale, Mr. MULLER said that the property would be offered in one parcel at an upset price of $215,000, and any one bidding any sum above this figure would receive a clear title to the same. This price, he added, had finally been fixed upon by the owners, although the real value certainly attached upon the realty, had been $300,000. No bids being received a colloquy some considerable time ensued, when the auctioneer again announced that, upon further consultation, it had been decided to offer the property at $200,000, as a sale was really desired. Mr. E. F. HARDENBROOK offered this sum, from which point bids were made—$10 at a time—until the price named above was reached, when a sale was effected. Among other bidders the names of MAX WEIL and TERENCE FARLEY may be mentioned. Mr. FAIRCHILD continued his bids up to $215,000. The price finally paid was considered low, as the public improvements in this vicinity, together with the further improvements connected with the opening of Hell Gate Channel, thus drawing business to this end of the island, are certain to greatly enhance the value of all real estate here located. Before dismissing this sale, a word in reference to the manner in which it was conducted is not out of place. On the part of the auctioneers engaged in it, Messrs. MULLER & Co., everything was fair and above board, while in giving publicity to the proposed sale, and otherwise, every effort was made to have the property bring a good figure. On the part of some other brokers, however, the system of fair dealing was not carried out, and reports were industriously circulated to influence bidding, such as that the property had been offered at private sale on better terms, and that by waiting, those desiring to make the investment could probably do so to more advantage in a private way than at the auctions. These measures were carried to such an extent that both the auctioneer and the executor of the estate were obliged to publicly contradict the report from the auction-stand. It is to be regretted that any feeling or jealousy should exist among real estate brokers, but when this is carried to such an extent as that an effort is made to influence a public sale, and to depreciate the value of really desirable property when offered, as is often the case, it is reprehensible in the highest degree. If dealers in realty would only understand that a successful sale, even when made by a rival house, was an individual advantage to all, and instead of endeavoring to injure business by decrying property when not offered by themselves, the public would soon present a more healthy appearance than it has worn for some time past.

Only one sale other than the one above referred to was effected, namely: By JAMES M. MILLER, who, by order of the Supreme Court in foreclosure, under the direction of D. P. INGRAHAM, Jr. Esq., referee, sold a two-story and basement brick house and lot on the south side of Thirty-first-street, between Ninth and Tenth avenues, for $6,325; purchaser, C. J. BUSH. Mr. MILLER also offered at public auction a house and lot on the north-west corner of Tenth-avenue and Eighty-third-street, and a lot with building thereon, on the north side of Ninety-ninth-street, between Eighth and Ninth avenues, neither of which were disposed of, although knocked down for $13,675 and $5,675 respectively. Mr. BLEECKER, SON & Co. also offered three three-story high-stoop brown-stone houses and lots on the north side of One Hundred and Twenty-fifth-street, (Harlem,) between Fifth and Sixth avenues, one of which was only nominally sold for $17,500, and the others withdrawn. No further business was transacted. In regard to sale of suburban lots at Kingsland Station, N. J., conducted by A. D. MELLICK, Jr. & Bro., yesterday, full particulars will be published to-morrow.

At the Exchange, today, the principal auction to take place is that under the direction of MULLER, WILKINS & Co., an executor's sale, at which an extensive lot of valuable City real estate will be offered, also real estate in Brooklyn, Jamaica, Long Island, Astoria, and a large farm in Essex County, this State. The City property is located on Fourth and Eighth-avenues, and on Thirty-second, One Hundred and Forty-second and One Hundred and Forty-third streets. In addition, New-York realty will be offered by E. H. LUDLOW & Co. and JAMES M. MILLER.

In suburban property three important auctions are announced for today, as follows: By S. DUNCE & Co., at Mamaroneck, in Westchester County, 302 acres of valuable land, together with two large residences and six cottage dwellings; sale at 1 P. M. Special trains from New Haven Depot. Twenty-seventh-street and Fourth-avenue, at 9 and 11½ o'clock. By JOHNSON & MILLER, at Clifton, Staten Island, 150 building lots, all handsomely situated; sale at 1½ P. M. Tickets for excursion-boat to be obtained of auctioneers, No. 25 Nassau-street, during the morning. By EDWARD A. LAWRENCE, at Flushing, Long Island, 1,500 acres of land, known as the Bowne Estate, sold in thirty-six wide plots, sale at 12 M.; special train from Hunter's Point at 10½ o'clock. The last-named auction is held by order of the Supreme Court, in partition. The results of these various transactions will appear in detail in due season.

At private sale, Wm. H. HARROUN, No. 6½ Pine-street, reports having sold three lots on the west side of Eighth-avenue, 75 feet north of Sixty-sixth-street, each 25 by 100, for $61,500; also, three lots on the north side of Ninety-third-street, 100 feet east of Fifth-avenue, each 25 by 100, for $76,500, or at the rate of $9,200 per lot; also, one full lot on the west side of Eighth-avenue, near Seventy-sixth-street, for $22,500.

This Road covers 100 miles of the most direct possible line between the Great Lakes and deep-water navigation on the Hudson River, the whole line of which will be completed and in operation before Oct. 1, 1871, and gives a new line of road to Lake Ontario and the West, twenty-five miles shorter than any line that can be found.
It passes through the cement, flag-stone and lumber region of Ulster County and the rich agricultural blooms of Delaware and Greene Counties, all of which have not heretofore been reached by railroad facilities, and from which sections the formation of the country prevents the construction of a competing line.
The thirty-six miles of road operated for three months is already paying net earnings equivalent to seven per cent., gold, on its cost of construction and equipments.
The issue of Bonds is limited to $20,000 per mile of COMPLETED ROAD, and are payable in gold in this City. Price of the Bonds, 90 in currency.

"Ring" Tactics Introduced Into the Quarantine Department.

The Way Dr. Carnochan Fleeces the State and Robs Our Merchants—An Authoritative Statement by One of the Commissioners.

Since the appointment by Gov. HOFFMAN of that protégé of the Herald, and favorite of the Tammany Ring—Dr. CARNOCHAN—as Health Officer of this port, the commerce of New-York has been subjected to every species of delay and obstruction, and our merchants have been compelled to submit to the most overbearing treatment and the most enhanced exactions from the new official. The newspapers have been filled with complaints of his usurpations of power and official malpractices, but, as they did not always come from an authoritative source, they have escaped that attention which they deserved. The public are therefore indebted to Dr. BELL, one of the Quarantine Commissioners, for a full and clear exposé of the conduct of Dr. CARNOCHAN since he has been in office, and it will appear, from a perusal of Dr. BELL'S statements, that the complaints, instead of being exaggerated, have fallen far short of the truth. The Brooklyn Eagle of last evening gives the result of an interview held by one of its staff with Dr. BELL, from which we extract the following:

HOW DR. CARNOCHAN GOT HIS APPOINTMENT.

The appointment was made, against the protest of the medical profession of New-York and Brooklyn. Dr. CARNOCHAN strove hard to get professional indorsement, but failed. But the earnest and steady support of the New-York Herald prevailed in raising an apparent popular demand, and the earnest support of Dr. CARNOCHAN and to it the Governor yielded. The new Quarantine Commission retained the services of Dr. SWINBURNE'S old counsel, Mr. HENRY W. JOHNSON. The first impulse of Dr. BELL was that the new Board should start fresh, with a counsel of their own; but on sounding his colleagues he found that potential political influences in New-York had been invoked on Mr. JOHNSON'S behalf, and accordingly it was useless to attempt to displace him. Mr. JOHNSON harmonized with Dr. CARNOCHAN as well as he had with Dr. SWINBURNE, and continued to interpret the law for the Quarantine Commissioners, so as to make out that the Health Officer had all power, and the Commission, his nominal official controllers, had little or no power over him.

THE IMPOSITIONS ON THE COMMERCE.

The first great object to which Dr. BELL addressed himself, on finding that it was hopeless to remove Mr. JOHNSON, was to have Dr. SWINBURNE'S extravagant charges for lighterage, stevedorage and cooperage cut down. The merchants wanted to pay for lighterage only the ordinary rates, which Dr. SWINBURNE had been obtaining them more than double the trade rates. Thus, a hogshead of sugar, for which the trade rate of lighterage would be fifty cents, Dr. SWINBURNE charged $1 16 for. But every time that the subject was brought up in the Quarantine Commission meetings, Dr. CARNOCHAN and Mr. JOHNSON were ready with some reason for delaying a decision. They kept this up so long as the Legislature was in session, while, if the Board had imposed what the merchants considered too high rates, the merchants might have gone to Albany with a bill to reduce the rates. The object of this delay, however, was not detected at the time, and hence it was not until after the Legislature adjourned that the new rates were fixed.

THE MANNER OF FIXING THE RATES.

Dr. BELL thus describes: Dr. CARNOCHAN said there was no need of hurry. Unsuspecting innocents as we were—this was when Mr. HUNT was President of the Board—and being so advised by our counsel, we remained quiet. Mr. JOHNSON was our counsel, but he was acting in behalf of Dr. CARNOCHAN. Dr. CARNOCHAN, meanwhile was at work in the Legislature, getting the Quarantine law amended, to suit Dr. CARNOCHAN, by giving him the exclusive appointment of all the lightermen and stevedores. Before that could be effected the joint action of the Governor and Senate was necessary, and these extortion practices upon them, and were determined to withdraw their licenses from these unscrupulous lightermen and to reduce the rates. But while we were persuaded to wait, and wait, we found that Dr. CARNOCHAN and Mr. JOHNSON had been working at Albany behind our backs, and that they succeeded in bringing the entire power of appointing and dismissing lightermen from us to Dr. CARNOCHAN alone. We subsequently learned that our own paid counsel, Mr. JOHNSON, was the very man who drew the amendment to the law, taking away from us, his employer, the appointment of the men. The amendment was put in Albany, I learned, both CARNOCHAN and JOHNSON, saying that "nothing could be done with Dr. BELL that he wanted to control all the lightermen." Beside taking away from the Quarantine Board the appointment of employés, they added that the President of the New-York Board of Aldermen to the Board which had to fix the rates of lighterage, thus, as they supposed, making a majority in Dr. CARNOCHAN'S interest, for high charges. To us three Commissioners of Quarantine they added the President of the New-York Aldermen, the Mayors of Brooklyn and New-York, and Dr. CARNOCHAN himself—four against us three. We seven met to fix the rates. The meetings were public, and merchants attended in large numbers, and at last, tired of delay, I drew up what I thought was a judicious plan of regulating the charges. The law of Quarantine contemplates three classes of goods. First, that on which quarantine is obligatory; second, that on which it is optional, and third, that which is exempt. I thought the lighterage should be paid accordingly; that on exempt goods the charges should be only 25 per cent. over trade rates, on goods that might be infected, 50 per cent., and on goods subject to obligatory quarantine, presumed to be heavily infected, 100 per cent. over trade rates. After I had prepared this resolution, Mayor HALL came to me in the Board and I showed him the resolution. We had a sharp discussion in the Board, and he lost his temper, talking about quarantine with a merchant who knew a great deal more about it than he did. He took me on one side and said, "Doctor, what are you getting at?" He read the resolution and suggested that it would be better to assess all, so that if any part of the cargo was of the obligatory quarantine or infected class, the whole should be subject to the 100 per cent. extra rate of lighterage. I replied that if a vessel came from Rio with 100,000 worth of coffee, which was of the exempt class, and 50 worth of hides, which were of the obligatory class, it would pay better to throw the hides overboard than to make all the coffee pay the same lighterage rates as the hides. When the subject came up in the meeting it was about to be adjourned again as usual. I said we had met on it several times, and there were about fifty merchants in the room waiting our decision; they had been employing lightermen, and about $20,000 already was claimed of them by these lightermen, under the old Swinburne rates; so I moved my resolution classifying and reducing the rates. There was no time to lose, Mr. Johnson, continued myself, who had studied the list of merchandise sufficiently to see the full effect of these rates as classified. Mayor HALL offered his amendment, and I opposed it by the illustration of the coffee cargo from Rio. Mr. JOHNSON whispered in Mayor HALL'S ear, and he withdrew his amendment. My motion was seconded by Mr. KALBFLEISCH, and we passed it before they knew what they were about. It was a reduction, in the average, of fifty to seventy-five cents on the former charges. Little of the 100 per cent. obligatory class of goods comes here in the Quarantine season—the merchants know better than to import hides largely in Summer; the bulk of our merchandise consists of coffee, which is exempt, and comes in at twenty-five per cent. extra lighterage, and of sugar.

Meanwhile, continued Dr. BELL, Dr. CARNOCHAN had availed himself of the power which the change he had secured in the law had given him, and had appointed a firm called WHITE & Co., to do all the lighterage. He had not the courtesy to notify the Board of this action. The Board had been receiving applications and offers from various firms to do the lightering. Presently WHITE & Co. notified them in a printed list that these were the terms which they were going to charge for lightering. These rates were enormous—an advance of fifty per cent. even on the old Swinburne rates. Mr. JOHNSON, the Board's own counsel, had written this for WHITE & Co. Dr. BELL moved that this document be filed among the previous applications of other firms. Then WHITE & Co. went about among the merchants charging these rates without waiting for the Board to act on them. At the foot of their bills they had printed that the rates were "approved by the Quarantine Commissioners." The merchants replied that no Quarantine Commissioner signed the rates. Then Dr. BELL moved that Dr. CARNOCHAN be notified that, as he had appointed the lightermen, the Board were ready to fix the rates at which they should be paid, and the classified rates were fixed accordingly, as above stated.

AN EXTORTIONATE INNOVATION.

Next, Dr. CARNOCHAN'S lightermen went on to lighter coffee—a totally unheard-of thing. There had only been one instance of lightering coffee before CARNOCHAN'S time, and that was under specially exceptional circumstances. Coffee was always looked on as an antiseptic, a security against infection, rather than a medium of infection. But Dr. CARNOCHAN ordered all the coffee to be lightered to warehouses, or rather to a particular warehouse of his own selection, where there was no machinery for tressing it. Previously all coffee had gone to the Harbeck stores, because there were the appliances for tressing it. But, for some reason of his own, CARNOCHAN sent all the coffee to WOOD, KURY & ROBINSON'S stores, at Red Hook, where they may soon recover. We regret to learn that it is the general opinion of those best acquainted with the parties that this will not be the end of the affair.

NAVAL MATTERS.

The Flag-ship Colorado Ashore in the Wousung River—The Corea Expedition—The United States Steamer Monocacy in a Cyclone.

A letter from a gentleman on board the United States steamer Colorado, flag-ship of Rear Admiral JOHN RODGERS, dated Woosung, China, April 12, says that, when proceeding up the river, she grounded on a mud-bank at high water, and, being unable to get her afloat, she was obliged to remain until the next tide. The water fell fourteen feet, leaving the ship high and dry, but she lay easy, and so little did she feel the effects of her position that the stateroom doors open and shut as easy as if she was afloat. The ship came off in due time, and proceeded to her anchorage uninjured. At the date of the writing she was preparing to lead the expedition to Corea.

The Corea squadron will consist of the flag-ship Colorado, steam corvettes Benecia and Alaska, gun-boat Monocacy and tender Palos. The ships take with them a crew of ship-wrecked Coreans picked up by an American vessel, who will be landed as soon as the fleet arrives, and who will naturally inform their countrymen of the kind treatment received at the hands of the people who come to treat with them. Should the Regent BONDOMA fail in bringing the Coreans to terms, he will use force, and is provided with all the appliances for a vigorous punishment for their past misdeeds. Should the expedition accomplish its ends by peaceful negotiations, it will return to Hong Kong about the middle of May.

Another letter from the United States steamer Benecia states that they have had seventeen cases of small-pox on board, but at the date of writing all hands were well. Two of the sick were landed in the hospital at Yokohama. On the passage from Yokohama to Hakodadi, and while in the Kariuno, or Japanese Gulf Stream, the Benecia encountered a cyclone, in which she was nearly lost. The first cutter was washed from the davits, the dingy stove, the ward-room and cabin flooded with water, and the ship well from stem to stern below. Following this she encountered a severe gale of wind up to 40° north latitude, and for five days was trying to get to windward under canvas, but making leeway all the time steam was raised, and getting under the lee of the land she arrived into Hakadadi. All hands well on both ships.

The Williamsburg Church Scandal—Statements of Both Sides.

The congregation of the Grand-street Methodist Church in Williamsburg have been much troubled of late by some unfortunate occurrences affecting the discipline of the Church, and to which they claim an undue public prominence has been given by indiscreet individuals whose personal feelings have made them unmindful of its baneful effects upon the cause of religion. So much of the difficulty as has been brought prominently before the public, relates to charges, brought against Mr. THEODORE COCHEU, Superintendent of the Sunday-school, for maladministration, by Mr. HIRAM ALWORTH, and charges brought by Mr. COCHEU against Rev. T. T. KENDRICKS, the pastor of the church, in which it is alleged that that gentleman was under the influence of liquor at a drum presentation in the Sunday-school last July. Mr. KENDRICKS has hitherto enjoyed the fullest confidence of his congregation, and is a popular and eloquent divine. The charges brought against Mr. COCHEU were investigated before the quarterly Conference, Rev. Mr. ROBINSON presiding, when a verdict was rendered in which he was found guilty of the charge of maladministration, and deposed from the office of Superintendent of the Sunday-school of the Tabernacle school. The Presiders of the Conference would not entertain the charge preferred against Mr. KENDRICKS. Charges were then made against the minister in Phœnix Division Sons of Temperance, and are now under investigation. Yesterday evening a TIMES' reporter, inquiring for the rooms of the Division, met a gentleman who gave his name as T. A. SCHOLEY, and volunteered to show the way, as he was going to attend the meeting. Questioned by the reporter in regard to the subject to be that night brought up before the Division, Mr. SCHOLEY said that he intended to give his evidence in favor of the innocence of Mr. KENDRICKS. He was a member of the Congregational Church of Dr. EVERETT, on Marcy-avenue, and was visiting the Grand-street Sunday-school, where he delivered an address on the day of the drum presentation—the gift of a toy drum, as a prize to one of the scholars—he was in Mr. KENDRICKS' company, conversed with him, observed no slight of liquor upon him, and believed the charge to be utterly groundless. Mr. COCHEU stated to the reporter that he believed Mr. KENDRICKS to be guilty of conduct unbecoming a minister; the matter had been suppressed in the church investigation, but the present one would be known to the public. Mr. SCHOLEY told the reporter that he could say nothing about the charges against him at present, except to repeat the denial which he had publicly made, and to point to a letter signed by a number of his congregation. He said that the investigation before the Division was a secret one, according to the rules of the Order of the Sons of Temperance, and when the verdict was given it would be furnished to the reporters. The investigation will be continued next Saturday.

Religious Discussion—A Hall Closed Against a Presbyterian Clergyman.

A lecture on "Auricular Confession" was advertised to be delivered last evening, in Masonic Temple, Williamsburg, by Rev. J. G. WHITE, a Presbyterian missionary. This lecture was intended to be an answer to one recently delivered by Rev. Father DAMON, a Roman Catholic missionary, in the Church of Sts. Peter and Paul, and several hundred persons assembled to hear it. When the hour for opening the hall arrived, the proprietor of the Temple informed Mr. WHITE that he feared serious trouble if the hall was opened for such a purpose, and he, therefore, concluded to keep it closed.

At this time there was a large crowd on the sidewalk awaiting admission, and when Mr. WHITE began announcing them, a scene of trouble, the Police ordered the sidewalk to be cleared. Mr. WHITE then took a position in the middle of the street, and said that as the proprietor of the hall had closed it against him, he would seek redress by law, as he was a law-abiding citizen. The lecture, however, he would deliver, if his life was taken in the attempt. The large assemblage applauded this, and then quietly dispersed.

Erie Mismanagement.

Complaint is made by the delay of the mails leaving this City over the Erie Road under the new time-table of that road. Mails which close in this City about 7½ o'clock are carried as far as Port Jervis, where they arrive at 11:55 A. M. They lay over until the arrival of the train leaving here at 11 A. M. About 6 o'clock P. M. This train take the mails through to Binghamton. The Post-office authorities here think that no remedy can be applied by them. Persons engaged in manufacturing business on the line of the Delaware River have to pay the same rates of toll for freight as is charged to Elmira, yet, notwithstanding this, they cannot have adequate mail facilities, which is considered a hardship for these gentlemen who have paid these excessive rates for the past twenty years.

The Jersey City Yacht Clubs.

The yacht clubs of Jersey City are busy preparing for their season of pleasure. The various clubs have increased their stock of boats since last year. The Oceanic Club has fifteen, having added two new ones this Spring. The Jersey City Club own twenty-eight boats, besides two others building at Keyport, which will be launched next month. The Mosmus Club has sixteen boats, being an increase of three since last season. This club is the youngest in the city, having been only organized last season. The annual regatta of the Oceanic Yacht Club takes place on the 26th of June.

The Kellogg Divorce Case Again.

Yesterday the Kellogg divorce case came up again in the Supreme Court of Brooklyn, on a motion by the plaintiff for a new trial, on the ground that since the last suit much new evidence had been discovered. Affidavits from several of the recently found witnesses were read, averring that they had seen the defendant behave in a criminal manner with one MILLER. In reply to these, Mrs. KELLOGG'S counsel read a number of affidavits from the members of the family, charging the plaintiff with brutally treating Mrs. KELLOGG, and accusing the new witnesses of perjury. The decision was reserved.

Fair of the Shepherd's Fold.

The Shepherd's Fold, an admirable institution, conducted principally under the patronage of the ladies of St. Thomas' Episcopal Church, is now holding a Fancy Fair. This is the third and last day of the sale, and the managers, who have been highly gratified so far with the success of their efforts, will be found to see a goodly number of their friends and the public. This evening Mrs. MACREADY will give a popular dramatic recital in Association Hall, at 8 o'clock, for the benefit of the Fold.

The institution, which is located at the corner of Eighty-sixth-street and Third-avenue, is incorporated for the purpose of recovering and adopting friendless children of both sexes, and has been in successful operation for two years. A movement is now in progress for obtaining 100 subscribers, who will each take the responsibility of paying one hundredth part of the annual expense for one or more years, on the understanding that each part shall not exceed $100. The amount is estimated now at $75 each per annum. Seven thirty names have been handed in, and Mrs. ROBBINS, the Treasurer, will gladly receive other names or contributions from any one desirous of assisting the charity. It is proposed to devote all the money received from ordinary sources to the new building fund.
